Plot to 'Cut Into Heart' Of Marines Is Charged

Cates, Vandegrift Allege Pentagon Officials Ignore Law in New Budget

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Nation's top Marine generals yesterday accused Pentagon officials of ignoring the law and plotting to reduce the Marine Corps to a scattered "police force."

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, ribboned Leatherneck Commandant, told the House Armed Services Committee that next year's defense budget would cut "into the heart" of Marine combat forces.

The Department of Defense "pointedly directed" that these reductions should come out of fighting rather than subsidiary Marine forces, he charged.

This, declared Cates, is part of an Army General Staff campaign to take over the amphibious role of the Marine Corps. His testimony was backed by that of Gen. A. A. Vandegrift, the conqueror of Guadalcanal, who was Cates' predecessor as Marine Corps Commandant before his retirement last year.

Rebuttal Begins Today

Their testimony concluded the Navy's indictment of Pentagon policies and practices, which has rocked Defense circles the past ten days. Today, the rebuttal begins.

Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington and Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, USAF chief of staff, go before the committee this morning to answer the bitter Navy charges against the B-36 bomber and their concept of strategic air warfare.

A parade of Navy admirals has charged (1) that the B-36 is a dangerously overrated weapon that will fall an easy prey to Russian jet fighters; and (2) that the whole theory of winning a war by an atomic blitz is unsound.

After Symington and Vandenberg, the committee will hear ranking Army chiefs and finally Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson. Their testimony is expected to be directed against the other key point of the Navy charges—that the Army and Air Force and top Pentagon civilian officials have stacked the cards against them.

Army Men To Testify
Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army chief of staff, who is to appear with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Omar N. Bradley, undoubtedly will be questioned closely about the Marine charges.

Collins' name came up during the hearing as the author of a 1945 merger plan, which the Marines said would have destroyed them. That plan is still being pushed to day by the Army General Staff.

Senate Unit Urges Philadelphia as 1950 Census Base

In a surprise reversal, the Senate Appropriations Committee last night recommended that the 1950 Census headquarters be located in Philadelphia rather than here.

In so doing, the Senate group rejected the House-approved vote of 3½ million dollars to build a temporary Census annex in Suitland, Md.

Instead it voted $870,000, requested by the Census Bureau, to house the estimated 5500 census-takers in Philadelphia quarters, now occupied by the Veterans Administration.

The Far East—Breeding Ground For World War?

What vital developments are going on right now in the rich and strategically important Far East? Does the collapse of China mean that the entire Orient will soon be seized, eventually touching off global conflict?

Fractures Her Arm At Church After Receiving News

By Richard Norris
Post Reporter

Burnita Shelton Matthews fractured her arm on the altar steps of St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw., yesterday while lighting a candle in appreciation of her nomination to a District judgeship.

She was admitted to George Washington University Hospital at 3:30 p. m. Her fractured left arm was put in a cast shortly after 8 p. m. She was reported to be in "good" condition.

Another woman attorney who lives with Mrs. Matthews at 1915 Kalorama rd. nw., Mrs. Ann Dodge Goodbee, told The Washington Post the nominee had just lit the candle at the altar and when she stepped backward she fell the three steps leading to the main floor of the church.

"She knew I'd been praying constantly to Saint Anthony for her selection," said Mrs. Goodbee, a Catholic. "She went in to light a candle in appreciation."

Mrs. Goodbee said her friend is a member of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

It was five years ago when Mrs. Matthews had suffered another fracture—of her hip—that Mrs. Goodbee became personally acquainted with her.

Mrs. Goodbee said she was called on to help out with some of the new judge's work during the illness, "and after that we became very close friends."

The Dodge and Shelton families, however, had been acquainted for years in their home state of Mississippi, Mrs. Goodbee said.

Is from Meridian, and Mrs. Matthews was born in Copiah County, Miss. Friends said Mrs. Matthews had visited the White House with Mrs. India Edwards, executive director of the women's division, Democratic National Committee, sometime before her fall.

Plans for 3 Sesqui Buildings Win Fine Arts Group Approval

With words of praise, the Fine Arts Commission yesterday quickly approved plans for the three major Sesquicentennial temporary buildings.

The buildings, shaped in the pattern of the letters U. S. A., are slated to be built on the 144-acre Freedom Fair site at the foot of East Capitol st. on the shore of Kingman Lake.

The Sesqui Commission will seek the necessary concurrence of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission at a scheduled 3 p. m. Thursday meeting.

Funds for Playgrounds
Milo Christiansen, superintendent of the District Recreation Board, will attend the conference to urge that the Sesqui Commission allocate funds to furnish alternate playground facilities for the area.

Truman Also Names 2 Other D. C. Residents

Burnita Shelton Matthews, 54-year-old Washington attorney, yesterday was nominated, in a surprise move by President Truman, for a District Court judgeship here.

If the nomination is approved by the Senate, Mrs. Matthews, a Democrat, will be the first woman to hold such a judicial post in the District. She is the wife of Percy A. Matthews, a lawyer with the Army Judge Advocate's office, now stationed in Georgia.

One other woman now holds a high judicial position. She is Judge Florence Allen of the Sixth Circuit Court.

Four women hold judgeships here. Judge Ellen K. Reedy and Judge Nadine Gallagher sit on the Municipal Court bench, while Judge Edith Cockrill presides over the juvenile court. Marion J. Harrow is a judge of the Tax Court of the United States.

Two other Washington residents were also nominated to fill the three new District Court judgeships recently created by Congress.

They are: James R. Kirkland, 45, Republican, former professor of criminal law at George Washington University, a native of Delaware; and Charles F. McLaughlin, former Democratic Representative from Nebraska, now an attorney here.

Members of the legal profession here expressed surprise that Walter M. Bastian, former president of the District Bar Association, was not included among the nominees.

Although as chairman of the District Bar Association's Committee on Judicial Selections that makes recommendations to the Attorney General for such appointments, he himself could not be recommended by the committee.

Bastian had been viewed as almost a certainty to be named for the Federal bench.

Godfrey Munter, secretary of the committee on judicial selections, expressed "disappointment" that Bastian was not among the nominees.

However, he declared that "as secretary of the committee . . . I feel confident that the nominations will meet the whole-hearted approval of the Bar Association of the District. Both Mrs. Matthews and Mr. Kirkland were recommended by the committee."

Farm Bill Hopes Fade For Session

Conference Unit Of Both Houses Disagrees After Bitter Arguments

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

All hopes for a farm bill from this session of Congress appeared doomed last night, when the Senate-House Conference Committee broke up in disagreement.

After 12 hours of constant and at times bitter argument, the two groups at the end couldn't even agree to disagree.

The Senate conferees voted to report disagreement. But the House group refused to vote disagreement with the Senate conferees. The effect of such action will leave the matter still in conference, so that it can be taken up by the committee again when Congress reconvenes next January.

The conference committee will meet again today, Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said last night. However, Lucas admitted he saw virtually no chance for any change in the decision reached last night. All other committee members agreed with him on that point.

Late last night, an hour after the conference broke up at 10 o'clock, Senator Clifton P. Anderson (D., N. Mex.) who authored the Senate measure declared:

"I'm not so sure an agreement can't yet be reached Tuesday."

What developments brought about Anderson's switch from his earlier pessimism was not made clear. It is known, however, that the night session had been pleasant, unmarked by the bitter arguments and personalities that took place in the morning and afternoon meetings. Also the last-minute refusal of the House conferees to vote to make a formal report of disagreement to the House today may have encouraged Anderson.

Unless such change of heart develops, the Aiken portion of the Republican-sponsored Agricultural Act of 1948 will go into effect January 1.

The last proposals showed the two groups not too far apart.

The Senate conferees made the following unanimous proposal:

1. To grant 90 percent of parity on all basic crops during 1950 the same as the Anderson bill.

The sliding scale formula of the Anderson bill then would take over. However, the offer provided a unique method for figuring parity for five years. It would direct the Secretary of Agriculture to calculate support prices under both the old formula (1909-1914) provided in the House-passed Gore bill, and

35,000 Germans Flock to Village, Fail to See Vision

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—More than 35,000 Germans have flocked to a remote Bavarian village in the last 36 hours in hopes of seeing a vision of the Virgin Mary and the infant Jesus.

The vision was said to have been seen a week ago by ten children. A priest said some of the children recently had seen the film "Song of Bernadette."

Buses and trains brought 20,000 persons to the village Thurn (population 618), north of Nuremberg, tonight after 15,000 knelt in prayer outside the village last night.

'An Age of Cain'

Indorsers of Mercy Killing Hit by Archbishop O'Boyle

Man seems to have entered upon an "age of Cain" in which science is mobilized "not for tranquility and conservation of life but for self-pollution and destruction," the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, declared last night.

The impersonal weapons of mass slaughter of the guilty and the innocent are the fruits of this science out of which Oppenheimer, the great atomic physicist, avows that the scientist himself has "known sin," the Catholic Archbishop said in giving the commencement address to St. Elizabeths Hospital nurses graduating class.

'Widespread Sentiment'
"Another phase of this prostitution of science which also identifies the 'age of Cain,'" the Archbishop said in the "widespread sentiment" favoring euthanasia or mercy killing of defective or incurable humans.

Archbishop O'Boyle declared that "human nature is God's creation and the rights man enjoys, because he is man, are his not by grant of any human authority, civil, religious or medical. When these basic rights are at stake, resort to social expedients, legal, political or medical to deny these rights is a matter that can shake the foundations of human society. He will reap the whirlwind who sows the storm."

He told the nurses they might some day "in your instinctive gentleness" wish that their patients be released from extreme agony.

He added:

God's Right Alone
"You may hear the well-meant suggestion for hastening this ending, for bringing peace to a tortured body. But one cannot assume the rights of God while he ministers to his fellow man."

"It is the mystery of God's will alone when body and soul shall be united in the dignity of human person—and it is His will alone that must govern the moment of his dissolution. It belongs to nobody else but the Creator; it can be delegated to nobody else by the arbitrary decrees of governments or men."

The graduating nurses were Vivian F. Ballew, Sarah C. Benson, Margaret M. Murphy, Ann E. Shay, James B. Hall and Warren L. Metzendorf. The diplomats were assisted by Dr. Winfred Overholser, St. Elizabeths' superintendent, by Edith M. Haydon, director of nursing.

Conferees Vote $15.5 Billion For Military, 58 Air Groups; Senate Unit Clears Arms Aid

Floor Is Expected To Give Quick OK To Provide Friendly Nations Weapons

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Senate Appropriations Committee late yesterday stamped its approval on the full $1,314,010,000 program to help rearm the Atlantic Pact nations and other free countries against Communist aggression.

The House has already approved the same figure, and the Senate is expected to give it a speedy okay.

The bill provides 500 million dollars in cash and the same amount in contract authority for the Atlantic Pact allies. It includes $211,370,000 for weapons to Greece and Turkey; $27,640,000 in arms aid for Korea, Iran and the Philippines; and 75 million dollars which the President can apportion, at his discretion, to aid China.

Korean Aid Program Voted
In addition the Senate added a thirty-million-dollar program of economic aid to Korea.

The committee voted after members heard a final appeal from Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that Congress approve the entire aid program.

In addition to approving foreign arms spending, the committee stamped approval on funds for building a radar screen around the United States and for military construction in Alaska and on the Pacific island of Okinawa.

The vast radar screen—which would be the mechanical eyes watching the skies for enemy bombers—would cost many millions. The committee voted 17 million dollars in cash and 33 million dollars in contract authority for the first year's construction.

A proviso was included to prevent duplication of this item if passed in the regular appropriation bill. The military bill, which is not yet through conference, calls for an appropriation of 50 million dollars for this purpose.

The Alaska-Okinawa construction runs to $157,611,700—and this program already has House approval.

The Alaska-Okinawa program was divided as follows: Army construction thirty-two million cash and $48,363,700 contract authority; Navy Petrol Reserve No. 4, Point Barrow, three million; Bureau of Yards and Docks ten million cash and $15,414,000 contract authority; Air Force twenty million cash and $28,834,000 contract authority.

In addition, the Senate voted two million cash and eight million contract authority for a program of Alaskan public works. The House had approved only half this amount.

4½-Pound Baby Enters World 19,000 Feet Up Off Ireland

Shannon Airport, Ireland, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—A 4½-pound American was born today in an airliner 19,000 feet up and 400 miles out over the Atlantic.

Tonight he and his 20-year-old mother, a Yugoslav-born bride of a sergeant, were getting along fine in the heart of Ireland's County Clare.

The newcomer is the son of U. S. Air Force Sgt. James C. Parker, of Alderson, W. Va., and his wife Darinka.

Here and there of the air delivery were the 44-year-old physician-passenger, Dr. Frederick Henschel of New York, and the airline stewardess, Mary Jane Hinckley, 25, of Millville, N. J.

The surprised mother commented: "I hadn't expected the baby for another month and a half."

The father, waiting at Rohn Main Airport, Germany, told reporters, "Gosh, this floors me!"

The child was born in the crew's compartment of the American Overseas Airlines' flagship Scotland, en route from New York to Frankfurt, while most of the 43 passengers dozed.

Green Rejects Union Cash Pooling Plan

Pittsburgh, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—AFL President William Green today told John L. Lewis that pooling of labor's resources while labor is divided is "impossible and impractical."

However, Green wrote the United Mine Workers chief that AFL's 105 unions manage their own affairs and will have to decide for themselves whether to go along with Lewis' plan to throw a giant wrench behind the striking CIO United Steelworkers.

Lewis proposed, in a labor unity move toward the rival Green that they give USW $2,500,000 a week. He suggested that nine AFL unions each match a $250,000 contribution by the UMW.

Green emphasized that President Philip Murray of the CIO and the Steelworkers had not asked for help.

Month's Deadlock Broken, Approval Removes Barrier To Adjournment

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House-Senate conferees last night broke a month-long stalemate in favor of a $15,585,863,498 military appropriation bill and an increase in the peacetime Air Force to 58 groups.

The conference agreement, raising funds for the Air Force ten groups beyond what the President said is needed, cracked one of the last remaining barriers to adjournment.

Leaders cautiously laid plans for a getaway Wednesday or Thursday pending final settlement of the farm bill impasse.

In these other developments:

1. A new talkathon started in the Senate against the conference-approved basing point bill. The measure may be laid aside at least temporarily today to speed final action on less controversial legislation.

2. The Senate passed an emergency Federal school construction bill authorizing five million dollars in grants to states for surveying school needs and an indefinite additional amount (25 to 40 million dollars the first year) for school construction in areas over-crowded by war-shifts in population.

3. The Senate Judiciary Committee put over until next session any action on 22 pending Federal judge nominations.

4. The House refused to suspend its rules and pass a Senate-approved bill providing incentive payments for exploration and conservation of strategic minerals. The 176-to-118 vote fell short of the required two-thirds.

The big defense spending bill headed for final approval today or Wednesday when Senate conferees yielded to House insistence on a 58-group Air Force.

Senate conferees also backed down on their demand for a 375-million-dollar cutback in the strategic materials stockpiling program, but not all the way. House conferees accepted a 100-million-dollar revision in the stockpiling program.

President Truman and his Defense aides had sided with the Senate position that only a 48-group Air Force is needed, but had backed House demands for the full stockpiling program.

Cordon Refuses to Sign
One Senate conferee—Senator Guy Cordon (R., Ore.) refused to sign the conference compromise. "I refuse to surrender to the arm-chair strategists," said Cordon.

Opinion was divided on whether the President would spend the $741,386,000 additional provided to build up to a 58-group force.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), chairman of the Senate conferees, told newsmen: "With Symington (Air Force Secretary) saying we don't need that many planes, and with the President saying the same thing, we don't think the money will be spent. Or at least I hope it won't."

Senator Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.), however, took the other view. "Since we've appropriated the money we should expect him to use it."

"The $15,585,863,498 total in cash and contract authority provided in the big military bill compared with $15,909,000,000 originally voted by the House and $14,790,000,000 approved by the Senate. The President initially asked only $15,324,506,700 for defense."

The conference-approved bill roughly divided the funds this way between the three military branches:

Army—$4,380,644,298 in appropriations.

Navy—$4,285,382,200 in appropriations and $643,546,000 in contract authority.

Air—$4,088,368,000 in appropriations and $1,992,755,000 in contract authority.

Campbell Vote Plan Aired in Alexandria

In Political Race De Lashmott Held 'Tender' To Utilities

Basil DeLashmott, Arlington County Board chairman, was accused last night of harboring a "tender" attitude toward public utilities that has cost county taxpayers "at least a million dollars these last three years."

The charge was made by Robert W. Cox, one of three candidates for DeLashmott's board seat, at a meeting of the Stenwall Jackson Citizens' Association in the Stenwall Jackson School, attended by 30 members.

DeLashmott, seeking re-election on November 8, and Jacob Bechtel, independent candidate, also spoke. Cox charged the County Board ignored a recommendation of its Public Utilities Commission in 1948 calling for investigation of rates charged by the Rosslyn Gas Co. As a result, he said, Arlington consumers are paying 2½ times the national average rate for natural gas.

Cox noted that an investigation finally was authorized by the board this year which, he said, "happened to be an election year for the incumbent chairman."

Cox also assailed the board for its failure to be represented at a recent Virginia Milk Commission price hearing in Alexandria which resulted in an increase in the retail milk price.

DeLashmott, who said he was seeking reelection on his 10-year record on the board, denied the board had failed to protect the public interest in price matters.

"I am only one of five members and I don't know why he singled me out," DeLashmott declared, "but the records are there to prove that the County Board has taken an active interest in public utility rates and prices. You must realize every time we go into one of these investigations its costing the taxpayer a lot of money."

"I certainly have no personal interest in the Rosslyn Gas Co. or any other utility, if that's what Mr. Cox is trying to infer."

Bechtel told the civic group he had "no ax to grind and nothing against either of my opponents." The present board, Bechtel said, is split into two factions.

"I'm a middle-of-the-road man and if you want to keep either side from getting a balance of power you should elect me," he stated.

Agreement Reached On Video ASCAP Tunes

under the modernized formula of the Anderson and Aiken bills (the last 10 years).

Higher Level
Farmers then would be paid the higher level of the two. Under this proposal cotton would be supported at a little more than 27 cents in 1950, and about 23 cents a pound in 1951.

The modernized parity, which includes cost of hired labor, would bring much higher support levels for cotton, tobacco, dairy products and other commodities than under the Anderson bill. It would have provided about 10 cents a bushel higher support levels for wheat.

2. The House proposal had been two years of full 90 percent support computed on the modernized Anderson formula. This would have brought for cotton, about 25.87 cents a pound in 1950 and 25.57 cents in 1951. The average would be less than 34 of a cent a pound from the Senate offer.

3. The final offer from the House conferees was to leave all commodities as in the Anderson Bill, except cotton. Cotton would be supported, under the Anderson formula, at 90 percent of parity in 1950 and at 80 percent for the next two years.

Just before the conferees broke up their 12-hour session for dinner, the Senate group defeated, by a vote of 4 to 3, a move to repeal the Aiken farm law. Since this would have left the country with no farm law after January, the proposal apparently was an attempt to force action on farm legislation at this session.

The House group voted solidly in favor of repealing the Aiken law.

Administration Vital
If the Aiken bill goes into effect January 1, it would be the law of the land only until changed. Aiken last night declared that its success would largely depend upon how it was administered by the Secretary of Agriculture Brannan.

Aiken insisted that Brannan could administer the law so that the farmers would sustain little change from present supports.

"The law does not make the change in price supports to the levels in the sliding scale mandatory," he declared. "It leaves any drop in levels discretionary with the Secretary. When it is definite there will be no new law coming tomorrow, Brannan could settle all farmers' fears about their future under the price support program by one public statement. I hope he does so."

Aiken declared he thought that many features of the Anderson bill had added strength to his measure. His only opposition, he said, was to continuation of mandatory price supports at 90 percent of parity through 1950.

Several minor changes had been made in the Anderson Act before the breakup over support levels developed. One of these was to drop from the bill an amendment by Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.) identifying brokers as chickens.

2 Jailed in Tax Case To Serve in Relays

Philadelphia, Oct. 17 (AP).—Two partners in a textile firm today were sentenced to three months in prison each for income tax evasion, but the Federal judge ruled they can serve the time in relays to prevent shutting down their business where 35 persons work.

The sentence was imposed on Edward B. Steinmetz, 59, and Clarence Evans, Melrose Park, Pa., on charges of income tax evasion. The men are joint owners of the Adelphe Textile Co., Philadelphia.

"I don't want the employees to suffer for the misdeeds of their employers," said Judge Welsh.

Radio Giveaways Provide Jackpot For Swindlers

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—Chiselers are nicking gullible housewives in a new racket based on radio giveaway shows, the National Better Business Bureau warned today.

The bureau said the confidence man tells a telephone participant in a popular radio giveaway program, and that just for her anticipated cooperation the sponsors are giving her right now a refrigerator, television set or other valuable prize.

Of course a tax is always due but the housewife is happy to hand over $10 for an official-looking receipt. The confidence man walks off with the money.

Aiken declared he thought that many features of the Anderson bill had added strength to his measure. His only opposition, he said, was to continuation of mandatory price supports at 90 percent of parity through 1950.

Several minor changes had been made in the Anderson Act before the breakup over support levels developed. One of these was to drop from the bill an amendment by Senator John J. Williams (R., Del.) identifying brokers as chickens.

New X-Ray Shows Soft Tissues In Human Body

New York, Oct. 17 (AP).—The New York Times today reported from Upsala, Sweden, a new X-ray machine that reveals new details inside the human body.

The inventor is Dr. Arne Frantzell of the X-ray department, Academic Hospital of Upsala. The Times says he gets photographs not only of bones and dense structures, but of soft tissues.

Soft tissue X-ray photographs have been taken for years, but not in the detail that Dr. Frantzell shows. His photos distinguish between muscle and fat, and show skin distinct from either. Under some special circumstances, his pictures show internal water.

Veins and their branches are distinctly seen. Fatty degeneration is shown in human beings, with pictures where fat is invading muscles. Dr. Frantzell says that his photos reveal fatty degeneration in apparently sound young men not supposed to have this trouble. They also show persons of 50 who do not have much of this degeneration.

Autopsy Shows Brother Death Accidental

Los Angeles, Oct. 17 (AP)—Police said today an autopsy showed a teen-ager killed his younger brother accidentally and not with a second so-called "mercy shot."

The youth, 15-year-old Richard Manning Elliott, told police he had wounded his brother while showing him a gun. He said he fired the second shot because he could not stand to see the boy suffer.

An autopsy surgeon found the first bullet destroyed nearly half the brain and the second bullet might not have proved fatal.

The autopsy report said one bullet was fired from several feet distance and that powder burns indicated the second was fired from close range.

An inquest has been set for Wednesday morning with Richard scheduled to be the chief witness. Meanwhile, he is being held by juvenile authorities.

Wellesley, Mass., Oct. 17 (AP)—United States Senator Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.) said tonight the Soviet Union "failed the humane hopes" of the world by refusing international control of atomic power.

Graham, who also heads the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, spoke at Wellesley College's seventy-fifth anniversary ceremonies.

The former president of the University of North Carolina said: "The refusal of the Soviet Union to accept the United Nations plan for the international control and inspection of atomic power was a great setback to international co-operation."

"After the First World War the United States renounced the League of Nations and failed the hopes of mankind. After the second World War the Soviet Union has obstructed the United Nations and failed the humane hopes of the people of the world."

He called the U. N. Charter "the last desperate defense against modern civilization's powers of self-destruction."

He recommended as "imperative" amendments to the charter that would:

1. Abolish the veto.
2. Insure international inspection and control of atomic power.
3. Set up a world court with original jurisdiction over individuals guilty of crimes against the U. N., with guarantee of an international bill of rights.
4. Establish an international police force responsible to the U. N.

He also called for widening of legislative powers in the Assembly of the United Nations to permit the amendments.

Mrs. Eugene Meyer of Washington, writer and lecturer, said "the academic freedom of our American universities will last only so long as they remain private institutions voluntarily supported by private funds."

But this does not mean that they cannot accept scholarship students supported by Federal or, preferably, State funds, she added.

Mrs. Meyer, a member of the President's commission on higher education, also recommended that the universities accept public funds for research.

But she urged them to meet their annual budgets "through their own financial resources and voluntary gifts."

State universities so far "have maintained their independence as zealously as our private universities," she declared.

Mrs. Meyer added that if the Government were to take over support of all universities and colleges, "the situation would soon alter for the worse."

Physiologist Says Tobacco Is Harmful

Tobacco smoking is harmful to the human body, a Mayo Clinic physiologist reported here last night.

Just how harmful? She said she wasn't prepared to answer.

In any event, reported Dr. Grace Roth, assistant professor of clinical experimental medicine at the Rochester, Minn., clinic, smoking increases blood pressure and decreases blood flow to the extremities—which isn't good.

It's particularly bad, she said, in cardiovascular cases, and may be a contributing factor, but not the cause of high blood pressure and heart disease.

Dr. Roth, who earned her Ph. D. degree in clinical pathology, told members of the George Washington University Medical Society she bases her conclusions on results of rigidly controlled smoking tests she conducted at the clinic.

The results, she reported, showed that smoking increased the pulse rate from a normal 69 counts to 105, the blood pressure from 99 to 118, and caused about a four degree (F) drop in temperature at the finger and toe tips.

Translated physiologically, she explained, the changes meant reduced blood flow to the extremities, which like all body tissues, depend on normal circulation for continued proper functioning.

Dr. Roth said her tests showed that it is the nicotine in tobacco that harms the circulation. Cornsilk smoking did not produce the changes, but injections of minute quantities of nicotine did, she said.

Worst Record For Polio Seen This Year

The year 1949 will be the worst polio year in United States history, United States Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele predicted yesterday.

He said he expects the number of cases to reach 40,000 to 45,000. And the incidence of infantile paralysis may go even higher in future years, he said.

In a speech before a United States Public Health Service conference at Atlanta, Dr. Scheele said 1949 will see nearly double the 1948 total of 27,680 cases in the Nation.

"The end is not in sight," he said. "This is a case where knowledge is urgently needed so that steps can be taken to control poliomyelitis."

In the District, 90 cases have been reported so far. With the polio season drawing to a close, the District is running opposite to the national polio trend this year. In 1948, the District had 138 cases.

Dr. Daniel L. Seckinger, acting District health officer, said increased reporting of nonparalytic cases in recent years made it difficult to analyze statistics.

In 1941 for instance, he said, the 76 cases reported in Washington were probably all paralytic. Of the 90 cases reported this year, only 47 were paralytic, he said.

One New D. C. Polio Case Is Reported

District health officials yesterday reported one new case of polio, that of an 11-year-old boy from the 300 block of H st. n.w., who was admitted to Children's Hospital Sunday. The District had 109 cases of polio at this time last year.

Tuberculosis Germ's Ability To Survive Seen Threatened

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Fighters of tuberculosis at Gallinger Hospital have worked out a two-punch treatment they believe has defeated the disease organism's ability to survive.

The treatment, alternating doses of streptomycin with an older drug, PAS, was reported yesterday to District physicians at the annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society at Hotel Statler by Dr. Monroe J. Romansky of Washington.

Reporting on ten tubercular patients who received the treatment for more than a year, Dr. Romansky said extensive laboratory tests have failed to disclose streptomycin-resistant bacilli in their bodies.

Continuous streptomycin treatment alone, it was pointed out, often ends in failure and possible danger to others with the development of germ resistance to the drug. Public health authorities have expressed concern that such resistant germs might make tuberculosis an even more formidable foe than it is today.

Dr. Romansky, clinical professor of medicine at George Washington University, told of the Gallinger success in symposium on uses of new antibiotics.

He said the Gallinger tests show

$88 Million Aid to Indians Bill Vetoed

By The Associated Press

President Truman vetoed yesterday a bill setting up an $88,500,000 program to aid Navajo and Hopi Indians.

The President at the same time promised to include in his budget message for next year a request for funds to initiate the 10-year program the bill proposed. He said existing laws will permit putting the program into effect.

Mr. Truman, in a message to Congress, said the "only objectionable provisions" were those in a section which, with some qualification, would have extended State, civil and criminal laws to the reservations which are now under Federal and tribal laws.

The President said he rejected the bill "with reluctance and only after the most careful consideration of all the provisions," since he considered it contained "many meritorious features."

He said section 9, to which he objected is "heavily weighted with possibilities of grave injury to the very people who are intended to be the beneficiaries of the bill." He added:

"Its many and serious defects outweigh, in my judgment, the merits of the rest of the bill."

The President acted on the last day of a 10-day period allowed him to sign or veto the measure, which was passed unanimously by both houses of Congress.

The chief points at issue in the legislation: (1) Provisions placing the Navajos and Hopis under civil jurisdiction of the States in which they live, Arizona, New Mexico and Utah, and (2) putting the big burden of Social Security payments to the Indians on the Federal Government.

Attacks on the bill were spearheaded by John Collier, former Indian Commissioner. The Association on American Indian Affairs and the Institute on Ethnic Affairs have condemned it.

These opponents of the measure argued that Indian property rights would be jeopardized by the State jurisdiction clause. They said the Social Security clause would discriminate against the Indians by setting them up as a special minority group.

Other sections of the bill provided for expenditure of the $88,500,000 to be appropriated by Congress—over a 10-year period to develop resources of the two tribes. The bill authorized the appropriation but did not actually make any money available.

At yesterday's opening of the assembly Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, national authority on heart diseases, told the physicians that more exercise and less eating might well hold down the rising rate of fatal heart ills.

If calory intake could be regulated to equal one's daily energy output, he said, not only overweight, but heart attacks, might largely be prevented.

Since men who have been muscularly active in youth are prone to coronary heart disease, he suggested that they continue their activities into later life. This, he said, might delay the attack for 15 years beyond its present highest incidence age level of 50 to 60.

Dr. Paul R. Hawley, executive officer of the Blue Cross-Blue Shield Commission, told the doctors at a luncheon that a recent survey shows most Americans can pay for their medical care when not saddled with the costs of those who can't pay.

He based his statement on a survey by Professor Eli Ginsberg, Columbia University, of medical care in New York State. The study, he Vandergrift declared that the history of 1946 and 1947 is being repeated. Then, he said, the Marines were fighting for survival and won a congressional guarantee of their status as the Nation's chief amphibious force.

No Nearer a Decision

"We stand no closer today to deciding these vital matters than we stood in 1946," he added. "Then as now these matters were the subject of negotiations behind the scenes under the sanctuary afforded by rubber stamps marked 'confidential' or 'top secret.'"

Cates told the committee the Army General Staff made these three proposals regarding the Marine Corps:

(1) Marine strength be limited to 50,000 to 60,000 and have no units larger than a regiment.

(2) That it be recognized that amphibious warfare is an Army function.

(3) That the Marine Corps not be expanded appreciably in time of war.

Army Evaded Law, Cates Says

Congress rejected such ideas and defined the role of the Marines in the National Security Act, Cates said. Yet Army General Staff officers have "used the very authority granted" under the unification law "to evade portions" of it affecting the Marines, he charged.

Under the 1951 budget and other plans at the Department of Defense, Cates added, the Army "today stands within measurable distance of achieving each one of its three ends against the Marine Corps."

In support of his stand, he said the Army is expanding its "specialist amphibious organizations not required in the conduct of land warfare" and has excluded the Marines from the two big landing maneuvers set up this year. Participation of one Leatherneck regiment was offered but refused, he said.

Cuts in combat units all out of proportion to reductions ordered for the Army and Air Force are being imposed on the Marines, the Leatherneck chief said.

"It is not merely a question of cuts in men and money—although they are severe enough," he added. "We are being told in detail—and told by the Department of Defense—where and how those cuts are to be made—by striking into the heart of our combat forces."

When Cates finished this slashing attack, committee members came to his support. Chairman Vinson praised his statement and declared Congress was not going to permit the law to be changed by administrative action.

"It's a good thing for the country to find out what's happening at the Pentagon," he added. "The ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT—Sarah Churchill, 34, daughter of Britain's wartime Prime Minister, is pictured at St. Simon's Island, Ga., with Anthony Beauchamp, 32-year-old London society photographer, as they announced their engagement yesterday. She has been touring this country playing a role in "The Philadelphia Story." They plan to be married Tuesday issue is—shall the Army and Air Force decide what kind of a Navy and Marine Corps the Nation shall have?"

Representative Dewey Short of Missouri, ranking Republican of the group, described the situation as "shocking." He said the committee would "stop that monkey business" of destroying the Marines by budget cuts.

"Starve You to Death"

"They don't have to shoot you to get rid of you," added the Missourian. "They can starve you to death."

Cates blamed the situation partly on the fact the Marines have no representation either on the Joint Chiefs of Staff, at the level of their deputies aren't (the "little joint chiefs" in the subcommittees below them or on the weapons evaluation group. No Marines hold any important Department of Defense posts, he added.

Last April, said Cates, he formally recommended that he be allowed to sit in with the Joint Chiefs when ever amphibious questions were considered. The Navy approved the plan, but Secretary Johnson rejected it, he said.

Marine combat morale still is high, said the commandant, but a "continuous feeling of apprehension and annoyance sometimes bordering on outright indignation" does exist.

Under questioning, he said he had no "concrete" proof of an alleged plan to transfer Marine aviation to the Air Force. Vinson broke in to recall that rumors of this were so prevalent on Capitol Hill a few months back that the committee sent him to the Pentagon to "get a statement from the Secretary of Defense denying that such was intended."

"Of course, if there had not been something to those rumors," he added, "the committee wouldn't have taken such action."

Cates submitted a six-point program, calling for greater representation of the Marines in top councils, maintenance of two full Marine divisions with full air support and a legal ban on Pentagon withholding of appropriated funds. Vandergrift urged Congress to retain control over military policy. "The great weakness of any military system," he said, "is that it cannot reform itself."

The House, meanwhile, passed and sent to the White House two bills authorizing construction of radio and guided-missile laboratories for the National Bureau of Standards. The radio laboratory would be limited to $4,475,000 and the guided-missile laboratory to $1,900,000.

The Senate meanwhile called up conference-approved legislation legalizing industry's basing point system in the absence of competition to lessen competition but a developing talkathon left its fate in doubt.

Charging the bill weakens anti-trust laws, Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) opened the opposition fight and declined to yield the floor even for a recess until the Senate gave him unanimous consent to resume his speech today.

Two other opponents of some conference provisions of the bill, Senators Russell Long (D., La.) and Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), were waiting to take the floor.

Long charged provisions of the bill leave small business wide open for big business price cutting, and said: "We are going to discuss the matter at length."

Senate Majority Leader Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) said the bill may be laid aside temporarily today for other legislation, but a night session may be held on it tonight.

Douglas told newsmen he "is not going to filibuster, but this should be discussed until the public knows what it's about."

Senator Long broke in to say: "Senator Douglas has scruples against filibustering. I haven't." The Federal school construction bill passed yesterday by the Senate goes to the House, where efforts will be made to call it up today or tomorrow.

U. S. Rejects Reds' Protest On Germany

The United States rejected outright yesterday Russia's protest against establishment of the Western German Federal Republic.

An American note delivered in Moscow also sharply criticized the subsequent creation of the Moscow-supported People's Democratic regime in the Soviet occupation zone of East Germany.

The Soviets have contended that the Western powers are trying to convert Western Germany into a "free ground."

The United States denied this and made the countercharge that the Soviets have set up in their zone "a large centralized police force, a police force moreover which is well equipped with military weapons and led by former German army officers."

The hope was expressed that Russia, "instead of seeking to impose its arbitrary will upon the Germans of its zone," will cooperate with the Western Allies to enable all Germans to work out their political destiny "without dictation and with democratic freedom of action."

U. S., Colombia End 14-Year-Old Trade Agreement

The United States and Colombia, by mutual consent, have ended their 14-year-old trade agreement, the State Department said yesterday.

This action leaves Colombia free to boost tariff rates on 153 American products.

This country likewise can increase import duties on Colombia goods.

Twelve such products were listed but only three of them are subject to tariffs.

Government officials said, however, that tariff rates on tolu balsam from Colombia automatically will be increased.

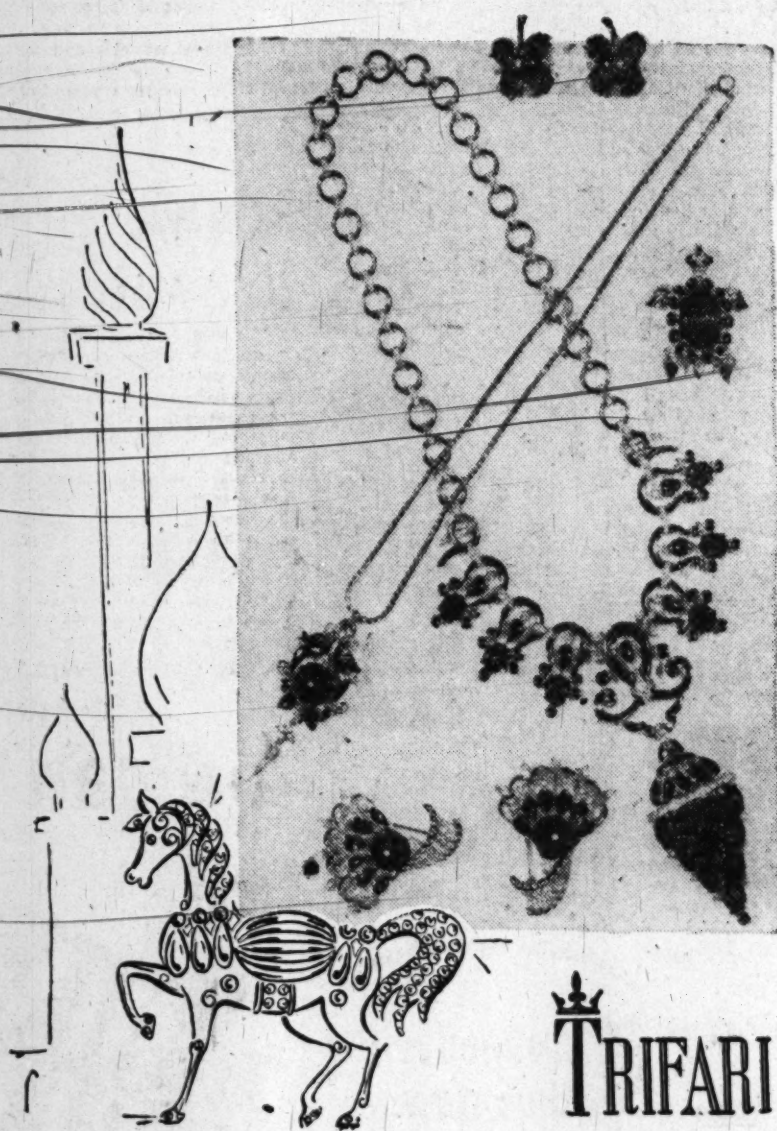

The agreement to end the trade accord came after both countries failed to conclude a new tariff agreement during the 31-nation conference at Annecy, France.

Assistant Secretary of State Edward G. Miller expressed hope in a note to the Colombian Embassy that it will be possible to negotiate a new accord at some later date.

As Ambassador C. A. Cannon To Resign In Belgrade

Belgrade, Oct. 17 (NYHT).—Cavendish W. Cannon, American Ambassador to Yugoslavia, will resign from his post shortly, it was learned today. The resignation will be based on grounds of ill health and it is understood that Cannon will receive a leave of absence from the State Department before reassignment.

The 54-year-old career diplomat, who has headed the American embassy in Belgrade since the summer of 1947, will leave here Wednesday to attend a conference of State Department officials and American envoys to eastern European countries to be held in London next week. He is not expected to return to Yugoslavia.

Cannon's successors is not yet known in Belgrade. Until an appointment is made, the embassy will be under the direction of Robert B. Reantz, counselor, who was assigned to this post in March, 1948. Cannon's resignation has been under consideration in Washington for several months and does not indicate any change in American policy toward Yugoslavia.

Reantz was summoned to Washington by the State Department for policy consultations in September.

Tito-Cannon Talk On Stepinac Reported

By the United Press
The State Department revealed last night that United States Ambassador Cavendish W. Cannon has conferred with Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia about releasing Catholic Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac from prison.

Department spokesman Lincoln White refused to give any details of the conference or its outcome, but he flatly denied reports that the meeting was held against the wishes of the State Department.

White said there is a possibility that Cannon may be relieved from the Belgrade embassy, but that it will be solely because of his poor health.

only a part of the war of nerves against Tito.

(On the other hand, French sources in London reported the Greek guerrillas soon may be moved from Albania to Czechoslovakia as assurance they will not renew the war against Greece. France is the only large western power with a diplomatic mission in Albania.)

The guerrilla announcement was timed at the climax of negotiations by a United Nations conciliation commission at Lake Success for a settlement of the Greek-Balkan conflict.

It also coincided with unconfirmed reports received here from the Italian news agency, Asa, which quoted sources in Trieste as saying a revolt broke out in Albania two weeks ago.

The Greek rebel announcement follows by several weeks the crushing defeats in which the rebels were driven from their Grammos and Vitsi Mountain redoubts into Albania.

The broadcast said the "Greek democratic army" had "stopped the bloodshed" to avoid the complete destruction of Greece. But it declared the guerrilla army still remained "intact, strong and on the alert," and warned "monarcho-fascists and their foreign masters" not to engage in a premature celebration of final victory.

Dutch, Indonesian Troops Reported Fighting at Four Points in Eastern Java

Batavia, Oct. 17 (U.P.).—Fighting has broken out between Dutch and Indonesian forces at four points in Eastern Java, a usually reliable source said today.

The reports came as leaders of both sides warned against renewal of open warfare. The United Nations central joint military board scheduled a special meeting for Tuesday afternoon to consider the worsening military situation.

The reported skirmishes were said to have been in the rich East Java sugar belt area south and east of Soerabaya—at Wilangi, 56 miles southeast of Soerabaya; between the Dutch and Republicans had been shattered by the fighting and by Dutch "mopping-up" operations around Malang, an important city south of Soerabaya between Wilangi and Dampit. A top Dutch spokesman also told foreign correspondents that the Indonesian Republic had evolved a "master plan" to infiltrate Dutch-occupied territory and warned that under the cease-fire agreement now in effect, the Dutch had the right to use force to stop such moves.

Cruel Deportations Charged to Soviets

Ilse Koch Changes Jails

ILSE KOCH, in Patrol Wagon Yesterday

Aichach, Germany, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—Ilse Koch, fat and faded, came out of the American Landsberg military prison today muttering profanely and was turned over immediately to German police who brought her to the gloomy prison here, charged with 29 Buchenwald murders.

The 42-year-old widow of the Buchenwald concentration camp commandant had served four years for war crimes. At the prison gates German authorities rearrested her.

Forty heavily armed American and Polish guards stood by to prevent possible demonstrations from displaced persons. But there was no violence.

Mrs. Koch cursed newspapermen as she waddled through the prison gate.

"Just wait until you read my memoirs," she shouted.

German prosecutor Jehan Ilkew was at the prison gates when Ilse was freed this morning. He heard an accusation that she had killed 29 and assaulted hundreds of other German inmates of Buchenwald. She will be tried by a German court early next year.

Kuomintang's Fall Without Force Seen

Hongkong, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—The United States diplomatic mission followed the refugee Nationalist government to Chungking today amidst indications the Kuomintang—the ruling Nationalist political party—will disintegrate through internal dissension.

Many observers believe the Communists will not be forced to use military power to complete the breakup of the Central government in which the Kuomintang always has held all posts of importance.

THE FIRST of a series on the Communist menace in Asia will appear in The Washington Post Wednesday. A team of five NYHT News Service correspondents reports that there is still hope in Southeast Asia despite the gains of the Communists in China.

They believe it will come from the intense friction between supporters of Acting President Li Tsung-jen and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Robert C. Strong, United States charge d'affaires; Robert W. Rinden, second secretary, and Lawrence Norton, supervisor of communications, plunged into a confused political picture with their arrival in Chungking. The picture is muddled further by the suddenness of the South China collapse.

Already both sides in the Nationalist controversy are blaming each other for the Communist successes.

Meanwhile, Communists captured the big southeast coast port of Amoy today after a month-long fight and clinched their hold on almost the entire 2000-mile coastline from Korea to Hongkong.

Twenty-three hundred Communist regular troops moved up to the Hongkong border and the Communist Peiping radio hinted that a demand for withdrawal of British troops from this outpost of empire might be imminent.

Britain Delays Recognition Of Chinese Communists

By The Associated Press

Britain has assured the United States and other Western powers that it is not proposing at this time to grant even "de facto" recognition to the Chinese Communist regime.

De facto recognition means recognition that a regime is in fact the government of a country. It falls short of full, formal recognition, which is called "de jure."

Diplomatic authorities here said yesterday that Britain gave an explanation of her attitude after the United States and France raised questions about talks between British and Communist officials in Peiping.

The United States charged Russia yesterday with a cruel mass deportation of people from an area where, according to some reports, Russian atom bomb experiments are in progress.

The State Department said it had reports "confirming" that 17,000 Greeks alone were removed in cattle cars from the Soviet Caucasus in recent months.

Some reports published in Europe have said the atomic explosion announced by President Truman occurred in that area of southern Russia, which borders on Turkey and Iran. Other speculation has centered on more isolated central Asia.

The State Department announcement, which said the forced migration took place "in circumstances of extreme hardship," supported protests previously filed by Greece against the deportations.

The State Department story of the Caucasus mass deportations was given by Press Officer White in response to a newsmen's question. Here, in part, is White's account of the information received by the State Department.

"The deportations began in mid-June and included the forced migration of approximately 17,000 Greeks as well as others in the circumstances of extreme hardship."

"Most of these people were small scale farmers, tradesmen and artisans long-established in the area. In mid-June they were suddenly without warning or advance notification removed from their homes and loaded onto cattle cars bound for the republic of Kazakhstan in Soviet central Asia."

"These reports state that in the early morning hour of June 14 MVD troops (Soviet Secret Police) suddenly removed the entire population of foreign origin in the Caucasian town of Gagry, separating wives from husbands and parents from their children."

"It is reported that one Greek woman was seized with her two small children in the middle of the night and embarked for the two-week trip to central Asia on an evacuee train containing no food or water. Her Russian husband was forced to stay behind."

"On arrival in Kazakhstan according to other accounts the forced migrants were simply deposited alongside the railway sliding without shelter or other elementary provision for their human requirements. They have since been scattered on various collective farms."

British Dollar Lack Problem For Long Time

London, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—Douglas Jay, economic secretary to the Treasury, warned Britons today that the country's dollar shortage crisis "is probably here for our lifetime."

Jay, in a speech at Bristol, said that the devaluation of the pound had checked the drain on dollar reserves and stimulated British dollar exports.

The cost of living has not risen beyond expectations, he said, and organized labor has shown restraint by refraining from using devaluation as a ground for wage claims.

But, Jay continued, it was "a gloomy thought but a true one" that the public should regard the dollar crisis as "a long-term problem."

"I am afraid the dollar crisis is probably here for our lifetime," Jay said. "There is everything to be said for the public regarding it as a long-term problem."

Jay gave his warning, a mixture of good news and bad, as a special cabinet committee completed the draft of a drastic "austerity" program which, political quarters reported, may effect savings of almost one billion dollars.

The program is to be reviewed by the full cabinet Tuesday. Details are secret, but political quarters reported that it might provide: A slash of 364 million dollars in imports of goods which must be paid for in dollars; the postponement or elimination of up to 560 million dollars' worth of public works such as hospitals, schools, public buildings and roads; freezing of wages; a possible return to a 5 1/2-day working week.

Sweets Take a Billion

Candy makers sold enough sweets in 1948 to provide 18.2 pounds for every man, woman and child in the country.

The Commerce Department reported yesterday the total was nearly 2,700,000,000 pounds. The wholesale value was placed at 998 million dollars.

India to Steer Middle Course, Nehru Says

New York, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru declared in a foreign policy speech tonight his country intends to steer a middle course, clear of entanglement in the cold war.

He warned, however, that India is willing to fight "when man's liberty or peace is in danger" because "neutrality, then, will be a betrayal of what we have fought for and stand for."

He called upon the world to talk less of war, to think more of peace and how to attain it, and admonished both East and West:

"The very process of marshalling of the world into two hostile camps precipitates the conflict which it is sought to avoid."

Given Degree at Columbia

The Indian statesman's views were given in a prepared address marking ceremonies at which Columbia University bestowed on him an honorary doctor of laws degree. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, university president, bestowed the degree.

It climaxed a day in which New York took its distinguished guest to its heart, giving him the traditional parade up Broadway to City Hall for the official welcome of Mayor William O'Dwyer.

His Columbia address gave a capsule foreign policy statement for which many had waited since he arrived last Tuesday on a three weeks' good will tour.

India, when she became an independent nation in August, 1947, "came into the family of nations with no prejudices or enmities," he said.

"Inevitably she had to consider her foreign policy in terms of enlightened self-interest, but at the same time she brought to it a touch of her own idealism."

Main Objectives elited

"The main objectives of that policy are:

"The pursuit of peace, not through alignment with any major power or group of powers, but through an independent approach to each controversial or disputed issue; the liberation of subject peoples; the maintenance of freedom, both national and individual; the elimination of racial discrimination, and the elimination of

Clash Over French Posts Ends Moch's Government Attempt

Paris, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—Socialist Jules Moch gave up his attempt tonight to build a new French government and President Vincent Auriol began looking for a new candidate for premier.

The first man summoned to Elysee Palace to see Auriol was Robert Schuman, a member of the Catholic Popular Republicans and twice premier who served as foreign minister in the cabinet of Premier Henri Queuille. Schuman said former premier Georges Bidault want, disease and ignorance which afflict the greater part of the world's population."

"I should like to make it clear that the policy India has sought to pursue is not a negative and neutral policy," he declared. "It is a positive and a vital policy which flows from our struggle for freedom and from the teaching of Mahatma Gandhi."

Both Radical Socialists and Popular Republicans were wary of accepting the "hot seat" in Economics Ministry. Jean Le Tourneau, a Popular Republican, finally said today he was willing to take responsibility provided his party also got the job of Secretary of State for Information. When Moch failed to make good on this condition, Le Tourneau said his party felt it was bound to withdraw support.

New System Speeds Alarm Of Air Raids

New York, Oct. 17 (U.P.)—The Air Force announced today that "great promise" has been shown by an air raid warning system which flashes its alarm inaudibly over any ordinary radio broadcast. Millions of Americans might be listening to the program but would not hear the coded warning which could be slipped into the broadcast within seven seconds.

Only special receivers in places like police stations and sheriffs' offices would register the alarm by light, bell or buzzer, the Air Force announced at Mitchell Air Force Base here.

Maj. Gen. Robert M. Webster, commander of the Eastern Air Defense Force, said the new system "showed great promise, particularly from the standpoint of speed," in a recent military test.

Telephone networks require from one to two minutes to pass an alert from control centers to the Nation's warning centers, he said. The radio system takes seven seconds.

Also, Webster said, "the radio system will be able to fan out the warning instantly over any desired area through a series of commercial radio stations."

The efforts of Moch to form a government broke down in squabbling over posts in his cabinet after he had been confirmed by a one-vote margin by the Chamber of Deputies.

Both Radical Socialists and Popular Republicans were wary of accepting the "hot seat" in Economics Ministry. Jean Le Tourneau, a Popular Republican, finally said today he was willing to take responsibility provided his party also got the job of Secretary of State for Information. Burgman's Recordings Identified

By Bill Brinkley

Post Reporter

A pretty fraulein yesterday laid down the first testimony in District Court aimed at directly linking Herbert J. Burgman with overt acts of treason while broadcasting for the German radio during the war.

Maianne Heilhecke, 26-year-old former German radio technician, identified recordings which she said were made by Burgman, one-time State Department employee, for rebroadcast over station "DE-BUNK" to the United States.

Burgman, 53, was chief clerk of the military attaché's office of the United States Embassy in Berlin until the outbreak of war. He is charged with 20 overt acts of treason in making propaganda broadcasts "intended to assist the German government in its war effort."

Miss Heilhecke, a russet-haired girl wearing a tan suit and yellow sweater, testified she saw and heard Burgman speaking into the microphone while making recordings which she said she supervised. Her testimony covered six of the alleged overt acts of treason.

Direct and a portion of the cross-examination of Miss Heilhecke was conducted in English before Defense Attorney James J. McLaughlin asked that an interpreter be brought in. The witness herself, who spoke rather halting English, had also requested an interpreter.

Miss Heilhecke said that before coming to the United States nine months ago she was employed at the American-sector radio station in Berlin. She told reporters she is now working for a plastics factory in Dayton, Ohio.

The World Bank yesterday loaned $2,700,000 to Yugoslavia and $2,300,000 to Finland in an effort to revive East-West trade in Europe.

The borrowing countries will use the money to buy timber-cutting equipment so they can cut and sell more timber to the Marshall Plan countries of western Europe.

Iron Curtain Cut Off Source
Before the war western Europe used to buy much of its timber from countries now behind the Iron Curtain. Since the war, western Europe has been so short of timber it has had to reduce its consumption by 50 percent, and has had to spend its scarce dollars for timber from the United States and Canada.

Bank officials estimated yesterday that the five million dollars loaned to Yugoslavia and Finland will produce timber which would cost 25 million dollars a year if imported from the Western Hemisphere.

The present loans are part of a plan devised by the Food and Agriculture Organization, of the United Nations and a committee of the U. N.'s Economic Commission for Europe. This is how the plan will work:

Cutting Equipment Financed
The bank lends the timber-exporting countries of eastern Europe enough dollars to finance the

Report Shows

Government Now Running Deep in Red

By Robert S. Allen

Secretary John Snyder will shortly publish a report showing the Government running deeply in the red.

On the basis of preliminary Treasury calculations, the deficit for the current fiscal year will be between five and six billion dollars. It is possible the figure may go even higher before the year ends next June 30.

Whatever the final total, it is certain to be among the highest in the peacetime history of the country.

Also, the report will show that the huge military appropriations (15 billion dollars) are primarily responsible for the stupendous magnitude of current expenditures. The military outlays, plus six billion dollars for veterans constitute nearly one half the total budget.

Two key factors are immediately responsible for the great deficit: 1. An estimated three-billion-dollar lag in anticipated income. 2. An estimated three billion dollars in excess expenditures by four agencies and for European military aid.

The President based his budget on the Treasury's estimate of a 41-billion-dollar income. This was a reasonable calculation last fall, when the budget was compiled. At that time, the national economy was at record levels. But latest Treasury figures indicate Government income will be only around 38 billion dollars.

The three-billion-dollar difference is due to the sharp business decline in the first six months of this year. The pick-up in the third quarter halted the shrinkage in revenue. However, the coal and steel strikes may offset this. Treasury officials say it is still too early to estimate the effect of these shutdowns, but they are deemed certain to have some adverse impact on tax returns.

Finns and Yugoslavs Get World Bank Loan

purchase of cutting equipment. Western European countries will provide other timber equipment of about the same amount. The eastern European countries will agree to export specified quantities of timber at reasonable prices.

Finally the western Europeans, by agreements with the eastern Europeans, will agree to pay enough dollars into the World Bank to insure repayment of the loans.

The loans will run for only two years at interest of 2 percent plus 1 percent commission to the bank. The whole transaction will, therefore, be a quick one aimed at quick results.

Czechoslovakia, another eastern European timber producer, is now negotiating with the bank for a similar loan, and Austria has indicated its wish to start negotiations before long.

Senate Passes Bill to Pay

Finns for Seized Ships

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the House a resolution to pay Finland $5,500,000 for 17 ships requisitioned by the United States in 1941 and 1942.

When taken over the ships were in United States ports and were used in the war.

Nourse Reported Insisting He Be Relieved of CEA Post

By Alfred Friendly

Post Reporter

The White House was reported yesterday to be searching out a replacement for Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors.

Nourse said that in three speeches, the texts of which are published, he pointed out that a balanced plan for "total defense" required the views of economists and businessmen as well as military technicians.

Factors of morale, civilian progress, industrial potential—and government and private spending for these purposes—had to be considered in the process of determining how much of the national income should go for direct military purposes, he argued.

This, he said, was a far different thing from the allegation that he advocated amputating legs and arms of the defense program.

However, in other matters there have been reports of deep differences of opinion between Nourse and his two colleagues on the Council, Leon H. Keyserling and John D. Clark.

although he registered vigorous exception to the charge it contained that he sought heavy cuts in foreign and domestic defense spending.

Nourse submitted a new resignation about two months ago, but indicated this time that he "meant it," it was learned from an informed official. Since he became chairman of the Council in August, 1946, he has frequently asked to resign, but each time has been persuaded to remain.

The White House again sought to have him change his mind on his latest letter, it was reported, but found him adamant. He is said to have asked that a new chairman be picked as soon as possible.

So far, Mr. Truman has not chosen a successor, but is reported to be actively searching.

The report of Dr. Nourse's resignation was published yesterday in the syndicated column of Joseph and Stewart Alsop. Dr. Nourse declined to comment on the story.

Fund Approved for Red Cross Girl's Injuries

The Senate yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill authorizing payment of $35,000 to Mary Thomas Schiek, Milwaukee, Wis., for injuries incurred in a wartime accident in India. Miss Schiek, then an American Red Cross worker, suffered permanent injuries, when the Army truck in which she was riding on May 27, 1945 in Bengal Province overturned. The $35,000 would be in full settlement of all claims against the United States and Charles H. McDewitt, Jr., former Medical Corps major, for permanent injuries suffered "as a result of the negligent operation of an Army truck and as the result of neglect and malpractice by Army Medical Corps personnel of the 372d Station Hospital."

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted to cut the $35,000 approved by the House to $25,000. But the Senate, on standing vote, restored the House figure at the request of Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.).

Woman Nominated For U. S. Judgeship

mended by the committee to the Attorney General for appointments . . .

Mrs. Matthews, in addition to bar association support, had the backing of Mrs. India Edwards, politically powerful head of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee.

"We decided to endorse her a long time ago," Mrs. Edwards said. "She was the only woman endorsed by the District Bar Association. Part of my job is to help advance women. When she received the endorsement, I asked her to see me. After all," Mrs. Edwards observed, "among 27 Federal judgeships, should not one be filled by a woman?"

Mrs. Edwards also remarked: "We have had wonderful cooperation from the President and the Attorney General."

Mrs. Matthews was born in Copiah County, Miss., December 28, 1894.

She was graduated from National University Law School here in 1919 and admitted to the District bar in 1920 and to the Supreme Court bar in 1924.

She has been engaged in the general civil practice of law here for more than 20 years.

She is a member of the American Bar Association, the District Bar Association, the National Women's Party, and is a past president of National Association of Women Lawyers and a past president of the Women's City Club of Washington.

Intensely interested in women's rights, Mrs. Matthews authored the 1935 statute revising District law on descent and distribution to eliminate preference for the male line; the 1927 law allowing women to serve on District juries and various measures sponsored by women's groups and written into state and Federal laws.

At one time, she represented the National Women's Party, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and other property owners in litigation brought by the United States to acquire the present site of the Supreme Court. The Matthews are childless but Mrs. Matthews, who lives at 1915 Kalorama rd. nw., has reared a niece and a younger brother.

The Senate Judiciary Committee

tee yesterday postponed until next year action on a list of 19 nominations submitted earlier and three old ones which have met opposition. A subcommittee was named to meet on the nominations next January 3.

The decision was made on the grounds that there isn't time for the Senate to act on confirmation before Congress is due to adjourn this week.

President Truman can give them all recess appointments, once Congress adjourns, and permit them to serve with pay until the next session of Congress confirms or rejects them.

Senator Herbert O'Connor (D., Md.) is chairman of the subcommittee. Other members are Senators Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and William Langer (D., N. Dak.).

Three Washington residents are on the list of 19. All named for the appellate bench, they are George Thomas Washington, 2500 Q st. nw.; Charles Fahy, 5500 Chevy Chase pkwy. nw., and David L. Bazelon, 4704 Linnean ave. nw.

Others nominated earlier: Wayne G. Borah, Louisiana, for Court of Appeals, Fifth Circuit; Nathan Swain, Indiana, Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit; Robert L. Russell, Georgia, Court of Appeals, Fifth Circuit; J. Skelly Wright, Louisiana, district judge, Eastern District of Louisiana; M. Neil Andrews, Georgia, district judge, Northern District of Georgia; Frank A. Hooper, Georgia, district judge, Northern District of Georgia; Gus J. Solomon, Oregon, district judge, District of Oregon; Delmas C. Hill, Kansas, district judge, District of Kansas; John F. McGohery, New York, district judge, Southern District of New York; Gregory F. Noonan, New York, district judge, Southern District of New York; Irving R. Kaufman, New York, district judge, Southern District of New York; Sidney Sugarman, New York, district judge for the Southern District of New York.

William Henry Hastie, Governor of the Virgin Islands, Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit; Thomas J. Clary, Pennsylvania, district judge for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania; Owen McIntosh Burns, Pennsylvania, district judge for the Western District of Pennsylvania; and Allan K. Grim, Pennsylvania, district judge for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

District judgeship nominations which have met opposition are Willis A. Ritter of Utah, Representative Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.) and Carroll O. Switzer of Iowa.

The appellate court nomination of Governor Hastie, a Negro, is considered likely to draw a call for hearings. Several Southern Democrats protested vigorously when he was appointed Governor of the Virgin Islands.

D. C. Kosher Board Sought

Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) yesterday introduced a House bill to set up a board of kosher meat and food control in the District.

The six-member board would be appointed by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of the combined congregations of Washington.

United Nations Anniversary Celebrated

Flags fluttered in the District yesterday as a week-long celebration commemorating the fourth anniversary of the founding of the United Nations began.

The celebration will be marked by several documentary exhibits on view all week at the Library of Congress, the National Archives Building, and the Smithsonian Institution.

Ceremonies in Washington will be highlighted with a city-wide illumination at 7:15 p. m. next Monday night.

An effort will be made then to light up all outdoor lights, all lights visible from the outside, the Capitol floodlights and special batteries of floodlights.

A special movie program will be shown at the Department of Commerce Auditorium at 8 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday nights.

4½-Pound Boy Enters World 19,000 Feet Up

JJJ-for-Jig. The little boy may want to know some time where he was born.

The first word came here in a message from Hennessy at 5:30 a. m.: "Passenger aboard appears to be in labor." Then at 6:34 he reported: "Baby born."

Miss Hinckley went to work when Mrs. Parker signaled from her seat the beginning of the pains. She reported to Captain Hennessy who remembered that Dr. Henschell was a passenger. The captain speeded up to 320 miles and hour, and Dr. Henschell and Miss Hinckley, a graduate in nursing at Joliet, Ill., who had attended a few other deliveries, made swift preparations.

There was no anesthetic, and Dr. Henschell had no instruments, "not even a paper clip."

But the stewardess boiled water on the tea cooker and came out with stocks of diapers carried in case any passengers might forget to put any in their babies' luggage.

By the time they arrived at Shannon the baby was snuggled in a cook's white apron. Dr. William O'Flynn, superintendent of Clare County Hospital, 16 miles away, had been summoned with a nurse, but there was little for them to do.

"The child, somewhat premature, didn't even need an oxygen tent. This Irish air is all he needs," said Dr. O'Flynn.

Dr. O'Flynn gave the mother an envelope containing $26 which passengers on the plane had donated to start a bank account for the baby.

Dr. Henschell said: "It only goes to show a doctor ought never to go abroad without his little black bag."

Miss Hinckley said she always had hoped something of the kind would happen.

Captain Hennessy thought it was the second time in history a child had been born in a plane.

An airport attendant suggested the headline for the story: "Air-born."

Mrs. Parker, a displaced person in Germany, met her husband in at midnight tomorrow.

1945 when she was released from a prison near Nuernberg. They and told a reporter she had named lived several years in West Virginia and New York City where she acquired citizenship.

Parker was transferred to Germany about three weeks ago. He went ahead to find a home for his wife and the baby. He applied hastily for leave to visit his wife and she did not explain the "very special reasons" for the Slavic name.

Tonight the mother sat up in bed and told a reporter she had named the baby Miodrag (pronounced Mee-oh-drag) "for very special reasons."

She said she toyed with the idea of giving the child a name "appropriate to his strange birthplace" but couldn't think of a good one. She did not explain the "very special reasons" for the Slavic name.

When you talk about VALVE-IN-HEAD you're talking about

The Power that made Buick Famous

If you want to know what's "the newest thing" in automobile engines, look at the Buick engine pictured here, and you'll see the words "valve-in-head."

But it happens that this isn't new with Buick. As a matter of fact, the valve-in-head engine was invented back in 1902—U. S. Patent No. 771095—and immediately, Buick adopted the principle, which became the first in a long string of "Buick firsts."

Not everyone went for the idea—then. In spite of the fact that this engine "breathes" more freely—gets fuel in and exhaust gases out more easily—others hung onto their pet ideas.

Then came the airplane, with its need for maximum power from every drop of fuel—and every maker of internal combustion airplane engines adopted the valve-in-head principle.

And more recently—with the hope that higher-octane fuels will become available for motor cars—a lot of automotive engine designers are taking a new look at the valve-in-head idea.

But just for the record, we'd like to point out that Buick got there first.

And ever since, Buick has gone steadily ahead, building up a name as "valve-in-headquarters." Buick engineers reshaped pistons to put Fireball wallop in these engines.

They stepped up compression ratios as fast as better fuels came along.

So perhaps you'll want to remember, when you hear the term "valve-in-head," that this is the type of power that made Buick famous.

If others want to climb on the bandwagon, we say "more power to them"—and no pun is intended.

But Buick has been doing more with valve-in-head right from the start.

And—we might add—it stands to reason that Buick is not through making this type of engine better and better.

Survey of Virginia Coal Output Opens

Four Cents Job Print Pay Boost Accepted

Commercial shop employees of the Columbia Typographical Union, Local 101, AFL, yesterday accepted a 4-cent-an-hour wage boost offered by the Graphic Arts Association.

The new rate, which amounts to $1.50 on the union's 37½-hour work week, is tied to an extension of the present contract for six months to February 10, 1951, with no further wage reopenings.

The agreement affects nearly 500 workers employed by more than 30 job shops. The wage rate is retroactive to August 11 and will bring day men up to $90 a week, night workers to $95 and lobster shift men to $100.

The union men approved the settlement at a meeting Sunday. It was disclosed then that the 1600 members employed at the Government Printing Office will hold a referendum to determine whether to reopen their wage rates. In the past, commercial settlements have been used as a basis for new GPO scales.

The commercial shop settlement was on a wage reopening clause in a two-year contract originally due to expire August 11, 1950.

Janitors Lose Suit Against Airline, Unions

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday ordered District Court to dismiss a suit by two Washington airline janitors contending that a National Mediation Board order violated their constitutional rights by "relegating" them to representation by unions which barred Negroes.

Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens ruled that District Court did not have power to review "determination by the board of what is the appropriate craft or class in which an election shall be held."

James A. Washington, 1812 Central pl. ne., and James E. Edmonds, 4327 Footh st. ne., janitors for Pennsylvania Central Airlines Corp., brought the action against their employer, the National Mediation Board, the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, and the International Association of Machinists.

The janitors contended that the board on January 31, 1947, revised classification of employees for the purpose of union representation, and as a result, janitors were represented by the brotherhood and the machinists, which barred Negro membership. Formerly they had been represented by the United Transport Service Employees of America, CIO, which joined the two men in the suit.

The discrimination by the unions was not considered by the court, Judge Stephens said, because the complaint did not state that elections had been held as the result of which these unions were certified as bargaining agents.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 17 (AP)—Virginia's Emergency Fuel Commission today instigated a survey to find out the coal needs of industries in the State.

The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce was asked to survey industries employing 25 or more persons, and Vernon E. Kemp, executive director, started sending questionnaires to 1400 firms.

Coal production from strip mine operations, on which the State is relying to meet essential needs, was reported to be progressing satisfactorily.

State Highway Commissioner James A. Anderson, chairman of the fuel commission, estimated Virginia had on hand four to six weeks' supply of coal. He said production is about 18,000 tons daily, and is increasing.

It is estimated that 10,000 tons a day will meet minimum needs. Requests for additional coal were received today from Alexandria, Martinsville, Norfolk and Petersburg and were started through the process by which the commission expedites deliveries in carload lots to communities certified by local fuel committees.

It was disclosed then that the 1600 members employed at the Government Printing Office will hold a referendum to determine whether to reopen their wage rates. In the past, commercial settlements have been used as a basis for new GPO scales.

coal fields following Lewis' offer. Secretary Sam Gulick of UMW Local 140 at Arcadia, Pa., sent this telegram to Lewis:

"If you have millions of dollars to give to the CIO, please give some support to Local 140 at Arcadia to help these men support their families during the strike."

At Bellaire, Ohio, the action of a local UMW president in calling for Federal seizure of the mines was condemned by UMW District 6 President Adolph Pacifico.

The local officer was George Kavanas, who asked seizure so striking miners could return to work. Pacifico said the district's resolutions committee will seek Kavanas' removal as head of a 300-man local near Wheeling, W. Va.

We celebrate "OIL PROGRESS WEEK"—by introducing the World's champ "cat-cracker"!

The world's biggest cat-cracker is now in operation at the Esso refinery at Linden, New Jersey.

In steel and stone it is the latest dramatic example of progress in making oil more and more useful to more and more people. "Cat-cracker" is a nickname. Its real name is "fluid catalytic cracking plant." Its job is to convert crude oil into high-quality gasoline and house-heating fuels.

To design this refinery giant called for thousands of hours of laboratory and pilot-plant studies . . . and the seven years of actual working experience since we put the first cat-cracker into operation. To complete it has taken lots of money . . . lots of work. It is an example of the kind of jobs this company and its affiliates do—and do well.

Doing these jobs is part of our useful place in the big petroleum industry . . . an industry made up of thousands of companies, big and little.

It's another example of progressive American enterprise at work.

Germany Revisited: Adenauer's Start

BONN, Germany.—This is an interesting time to revisit Germany. But I am leaving it with the feeling that I have seen only the first quarter of an hour of the opening act of a tremendous drama in which the fate of Europe is at issue.

Lippmann unifies the continent or plunges it into unimaginable disorder. No one can now, I am sure, predict the outcome. For the outcome will be determined by the interaction of the six governments—two German and the four occupying governments, all of whom now exercise an important, though none exercises a decisive, authority in Germany. But if one cannot predict the outcome of this unprecedented fragmentation of German power, one can I think say that the drama can have, not of course that it will have, a tolerably happy ending. An opportunity exists. Whether it can and will be used while it exists and before it disappears, perhaps for ever, is a question which can now be answered only with hope and with faith.

HAVING come from Paris to Bonn, I have an impression—to speak conservatively—that a Franco-German understanding, which is without doubt the key to a European settlement, may be possible. The Adenauer government at Bonn is not only disposed to move in that direction but it is, I believe, compelled to move in that direction if it is not to collapse and to be destroyed by the dark forces which are, of course, still latent and potentially powerful in Germany. Dr. Adenauer is a man of consequence. He is not a political hack nor a relic of the past age nor, I believe, an adventurer and demagogue. He has a strong will, and imposing personal authority, and exceptional experience in German internal politics. He is shrewd and commonly known as "the Fox." Obviously the question is what general lines of action his experiences and his shrewdness are leading him toward.

I CANNOT, of course, quote what he said in the talks I had with him and with certain of his principal advisers. But the questions I put to them were the hardest questions. They were the questions which everybody thinks about and no one in a responsible post feels free to speak about publicly. There is, I believe, ground for concluding that the purposes which his government professes—namely that Germany's future is in a European system founded initially or a Franco-German settlement—are not a pretense but are genuine.

There are at least two critical tests of these purposes. The one is the attitude of the Bonn government toward German rearmament. Another is the nature of the economic reconstruction with which it has made such remarkable progress.

NATURALLY, the Bonn government is concerned about all this talk of a war in which western Germany would be the forward area and the battlefield of the defense of western Europe. But I have found no evidence that the Bonn government wishes to re-create the German army. Quite the contrary. The fact that they say they do not want that would not in itself be in the least convincing to me. They would have to say that just now whether they meant it or not. But the reasons are, I believe, persuasive.

They are that once the fateful process were begun of establishing the German Wehrmacht, once the officer corps were called back and the young men put back under its leadership and discipline, the present government would soon be pushed aside and either captured or destroyed. The non-militarism of this government is, I believe, sincere, even if one discounts the assurances, because the political survival of the high officials, the chief functionaries is bound up with it.

A SECOND critical test of their intentions is the character of their economic reconstruction. They have staked the life of their government on an economic policy which cannot succeed and raise their standard of life unless in the greater part of the world there is a free economy with multilateral trading and convertible currencies.

These ARE the hard reasons underneath the imponderables. The aspiration for a new and different Germany in a new and different European order exists and is impressive. One dare not as yet trust it too much. But one is bound to believe that this government can take what we may call the good European line—if the Western governments are clear in their own purposes and wise in the exercise of their influence.

Hiss Witness Wins Appeal

By Chalmers M. Roberts

A witness in the Alger Hiss case yesterday in his refusal to answer grand jury questions on the grounds of self-incrimination. He is William Rosen, now of California but a Washington resident in the 1930s. Rosen refused to answer the New York jurors' questions about Hiss' 1929 Ford which Rosen is supposed to have bought from the Cherner Motor Co. the same day Hiss turned it over to the auto firm.

Whittaker Chambers, Hiss' accuser, had declared Hiss "threw in" the Ford in subletting his apartment to Chambers in 1935. Chambers further testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee that Hiss had "insisted" that he wanted the car turned over to the open (Communist) party so it could be of use to some poor organizer in the West or somewhere.

Reversed on Appeal. After Rosen refused to testify he was sentenced to six months in jail. But the Federal Court of Appeals in New York reversed the conviction on the grounds his answers might have eventually shown him to be or have been "a co-conspirator" in the case.

The Constitution provides that no person may be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself. Rosen has been missing for some time but last week was located by the FBI on a Los Angeles street. United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy in New York said he had Rosen's promise to be present at Hiss' second trial, scheduled to begin November 1. He was not a witness at the first which resulted in a hung jury.

Review Denied. The Supreme Court yesterday upheld Rosen by refusing to consider the Government's request for a review of the Circuit Court ruling. It was announced that Justices Reed, Frankfurter and Clark took no part in the decision. The first two were character witnesses for Hiss at his trial and Clark was Attorney General when the case was prosecuted.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman had asked for the case's review to obtain a "sharper delineation of the boundaries of the constitutional privilege" involved.

Rent Control Review Granted. In other actions yesterday the Supreme Court:

1. Agreed to review a Chicago court ruling that the 1949 rent control law is unconstitutional. The Government has stated that if the ruling stands some 14 million American tenants "will be left defenseless..." against rent increases.

2. Agreed to review the contempt of Congress convictions of two officials of the Joint Anti-Fascist League, Ernestina G. Fleisch-

Traffic Deaths of Oldsters Called 'Criminal' Situation

Washington's large percentage of traffic fatalities among elderly pedestrians was described last night as a "criminal" situation.

A Julian Zrylawski, speaking at the monthly meeting of the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board in the Municipal Center, said the old-age group, "which is actually only about 7 to 8 percent of our population, is furnishing about 40 percent of our accidents."

Brylawski, who described plans for a month-long educational program in November for oldsters, said "the great difficulty is to reach that group. We do our darndest, but members of that group, and the preschool group, always have been and always will be our problem."

Inspector Arthur Miller, of the police traffic division, told the board that a breakdown of the 39 pedestrian traffic deaths this year disclosed 17 were over 60 years of age, 17 from 20 to 60, and five under 20. Washington's 1949 traffic fatalities to date total 55, two more than in 1948, and, "we are going into a bad time of the year," Miller said.

Wallace L. Braun, deputy director of vehicles and traffic, reported his division was asking for a $100,000 increase in the next fiscal budget.

He explained six more motor vehicle inspectors are needed to handle the increased number of car inspections, now 36 percent greater than the volume for which the two inspection stations were designed in 1938. Three additional men to care for traffic signals are required, also funds to install approximately 20 more traffic signals.

Plans for a survey of business firms with the possibility of recommending staggered working hours, also were discussed at the meeting. Arthur J. Sundin, chairman, presided.

McCarran in Rome, Wants Spain in Pact

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP).—Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said today he favors Spain's admission into the North Atlantic defense alliance.

"Spain is a strategic strong-point," he declared in an interview. "It's active cooperation with other anti-Communist nations would strengthen the Atlantic pact."

McCarran's statement came in the wake of a report that the President had asked the British government to consider the possibility of Spain's joining the pact.

The British government had said it was not in a position to make a decision at this time.

McCarran's statement was made in the course of a tour of Europe to promote the Atlantic pact.

He is expected to return to Washington in a few days.

McCarran's statement was widely welcomed by those who favor a strong Atlantic pact.

It was seen as a significant step toward the inclusion of Spain in the pact.

McCarran's statement was also seen as a rebuke to those who oppose the inclusion of Spain.

He said he would continue to work for the inclusion of Spain in the pact.

Bladensburg Hits Beer License Bid

The Bladensburg Town Council representative of the new enterprise, said he could not accede to a request by Mayor Andrew F. Gasch that the application be withdrawn. The resolution of opposition was passed. It will be presented to the Prince Georges County license board, which has final authority.

In an executive session following the hearing, council voted to restore Clifton L. Bartley, 29, to town police duty. The action was taken after conference with Police Chief Henry J. Nebel.

Nebel suspended Bartley after he was found unconscious Wednesday night, a bullet from his gun discharged. Bartley told Nebel he was acting as guard at the skating rink building, and ran out when he heard a noise and saw headlight reflections. Bartley slipped and fell, he said.

Nebel told council members that, after investigation, he found no reason to doubt Bartley's story.

Conley Quits PUC Post In Arlington

Resignation of Lester R. Conley from the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission was announced yesterday by Basil M. DeLashmutter, chairman of the County Board.

Conley, a board member for three years, said in a letter to DeLashmutter that his private law practice "makes it practically impossible for me to continue properly to meet my obligations as a member of the commission."

"I feel obligated to step aside in order that my place on the commission may be filled by some person who is willing and able to carry on the duties incident to the commission's activities," he wrote. Conley was chairman of the commission's transportation committee. He said he would help in such work when called upon.

A successor will probably be named at the County Board meeting on October 22, DeLashmutter said.

By Dr. Jenkins Maryland U. Asked to Let Negroes In

Baltimore, Oct. 17 (AP)—One of the State's leading Negro educators urged today that the University of Maryland admit members of his race to its graduate and professional schools.

Dr. Martin Jenkins, president of Morgan State College in Baltimore, made his suggestions before the State Commission to study Negro Education.

He said admitting Negroes to certain schools of the University is the only practical and economical way of providing equal training for them.

It will cost too much, he declared, to build up separate schools for them under a regional educational plan now being worked out by a dozen Southern States.

Seven of these States, he said, already admit Negroes to the graduate and professional schools at

Police Recover Marked Money On Sidewalk Numbers Suspect

A man described by police vice squad officers as a sidewalk numbers operator was arrested yesterday in the 1200 block of 7th st. nw. and charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips.

Officers identified him as Dimpf Rabbitt Haynes, 52, of 634 N st. nw. They said he was arrested on a warrant obtained on plays made by undercover men, and that Haynes had marked money in his possession. His case was continued to Wednesday by United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence.

Bond was set at $1500. Eight persons seized in raids on their universities. Several private schools in Maryland also admit them.

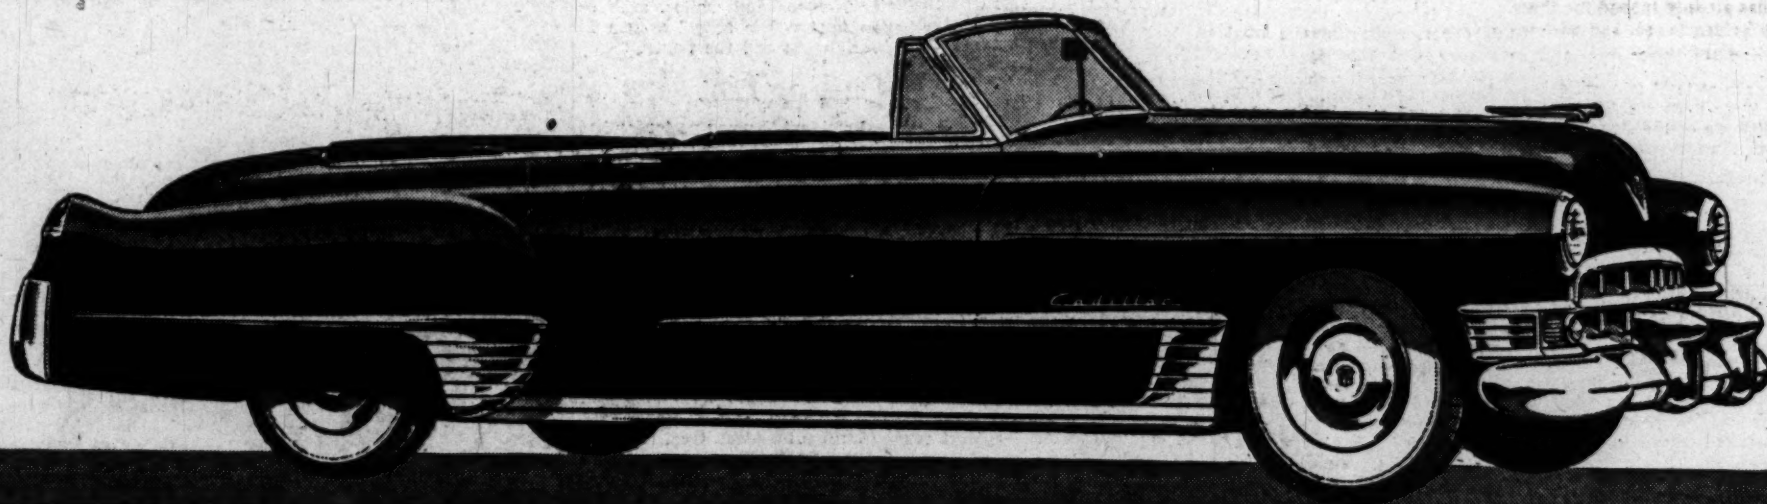

He suggested that the undergraduate school of engineering at the University of Maryland also be opened to Negroes. The law school is the only division which regularly accepts Negro applicants.

Perfect Background for a Lady!

Sometimes, we think a lady never looks so lovely as when she's seated at the wheel of a Cadillac car.

First of all—she looks serene ...
... for she knows she is driving the world's most distinguished motor car—a car so regal in its bearing and so sumptuous in its appointments that it is the accepted standard for the whole automotive world.

She looks confident, too ...
... for she knows she is driving a mechanical masterpiece—a car that is as dependable and safe as human ingenuity and craftsmanship can make it.

She looks rested and at ease ...
... for there is no strain at all to her driving. The big motor moves the car as if by automatic propulsion—steering is virtually a response to her wish—and the brake pedal calls for little more than the weight of a foot.

And, finally, she looks—as we said—so lovely ...
... for here is the perfect background for a lady. If she has chosen the model and the color and upholstery with care—as the fullest complement to her personality—she is the spot-lighted high-light in a gorgeous picture!

This message, of course, is addressed to a man—to a man with a lovely lady whom he delights to see at her best—and whom he wants surrounded, wherever she drives, with every safeguard an automobile can provide.

Come in, Sir—and see us. You are looking, as you surely know, for a Cadillac!

Fishing Staff Spot Keep On Biting In Potomac

By Ralph Murdock
WHO CAN RECALL when spot could be taken in this area with regularity after the middle of October? Anglers, they are still nabbing them in the lower Potomac River and the Point Lookout area. Not 200 at a crack but 50 to 75 at these locations. Some of the fair catches have also been recorded in the lower Patuxent as late as Saturday. We attribute this condition to water temperatures and the Indian Summer weather which are now enjoying.

In the same breath we might mention that the prevailing conditions have also slowed up the schooling of the big strippers. There are gobs of big rockfish around but they are well scattered at the present. We mean the big ones. Several chills or chills in a row will be the time when the big ones will go into a huddle. That's when the sport is at its best.

Most of the fishing boats are now catching one, two, and three of the hefty and the fishing guides are only waiting for a drop in the temperature to alter the entire situation. It should be a reality, soon.

TWO ANGLING parties from G. P. O. the big local printery, had catches of 4 and 20 rockfish while fishing with Capt. Gene Cockrell and Jerome King from the Rod and Reel Club at Chesapeake Beach. They fished from the Marietta and Queen Mary respectively. A third party from the same pier nabbed 12 strippers. They were aboard the Chesapeake with Skipper Beck Grieron at the helm. All three parties were handicapped by choppy waters. Holland Point was the scene of action.

Seldom will you find a combination of a fresh and salt water angler. He is either dyed-in-the-wool fresh water fisherman or a salt water angler, 100 percent. (Back Sacks, please note.) In other words, a 50-50 angler is a rarity. There's no middle road in fishing circles.

NEVERTHELESS, we have located not one but two anglers in one family who enjoy both types of fishing. You would never have guessed it—a mother and son. A couple of afternoon sessions with the large mouth bass produced four large mouths for the mother while pole fishing with peeler crab on the initial trip. Six beauties were taken by the feminine angler on the next outing while fishing with rod and reel. The bass averaged 1 1/2 pounds each and were taken at Kitty Hawk. A total of 10 for the mother. Not bad, eh?

The son had this to say, "I caught 23 largemouth in 3 days, returning 9, because the limit is 8 per day. None weighed less than a pound. Several were 2 pounds and better and several a pound and a half. All were caught with either a Johnson silver minnow or a small (green) jittersbug." He added, "It was surprising how they went for the surface-running jittersbug in deep water." Lee Perry was the guide.

The fourth day with another guide produced only 4 bass for the son. All in all, the two anglers caught a total of 47 largemouth bass. Without qualification, they claim that Perry is the best bass guide they've ever encountered.

In a single day while fishing in the salt water of Oregon Inlet they caught 50 flounder. The anglers were spending an autumn vacation at Neg's Head.

Striking Runs Second In Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter
Laurel, Md., Oct. 17.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Bed O' Roses, a filly from the mare Good Thing, proved a sweet morsel to her backers on this overcast afternoon.

The 2-year-old filly qualified impressively for Saturday's $25,000 added Selma Stakes, winning by three lengths in a test, for some reason or another, named "The Brilliant Blue."

Owner Vanderbilt and jockey Eric Guerin came down from New York for the race.

Assault Retired
By King Ranch
Laurel, Md., Oct. 17.—King Ranch's Assault has been retired forever and will not accept the invitation to run in the Pimlico Special, Friday, October 28. Trainer Max Hirsch made the announcement here today. Hirsch had hoped to race Assault at the Baltimore track, but despite sound legs, the former star has other ailments keeping him from reaching his peak.

York for the race. The former did the routing and the latter the riding and reward came in the fashion of a clean-cut victory.

The daughter of Rosemont had daylight to spare between her and the second filly, Ogden Phipps' highly regarded Striking, who, coupled with Busanda in the bet-the-horse proved the fourth filly favorite of the day to strike out. Third money went to a Newmeyer's Flying Mame.

In the role of second choice in the field of seven, Bed O' Roses returned a $5.80 return. Despite half weight of 122 pounds, the filly stepped the mile and a sixteenth in the excellent time of 1:45.2/5.

For a defeat of Striking proved another blow to backers of the public choices, who blamed Apprentice Richard Stark for two setbacks early in the program. The "bug rider" appeared to allow Bat Girl to lag in the second race and she failed to get up to J. R. Funkhouser's Wingy, the $9.60 winner.

Stark appeared to "go to sleep" aboard H. E. MacCraw's Entreat in the fifth race. He seemed to have the race won when Audley Farm's Miss Comedy, a fugitive from the half-mile, came on and nipped Stark's mount right at the wire. The stewards then called the disciplinary action was made.

A handful of longshot players, it was a lucky day when Entreat was beaten. Miss Comedy, whose victory was regarded as a joke in some circles, paid her faithful backers $114.

On the Waterfront: Tips for Prospective Boat Owners

By Happy Walker
THIS WRITER has felt for some time that there is a lack of information for the prospective boat owner or beginner who would like to take up the sport, but don't know just which way to turn.

Many a man, at some time or other, has looked longingly at a fleet of sail boats, or the smaller inboards and outboards churning around a race course, and has said to himself, "That's for me."

But where to turn for answers to such questions as—how much money do I need?—what type of boat do I want?—will it be sail or power?—should I build or should I buy?—what about the maintenance cost?—and where can I get the proper instructions?

In this, and subsequent, articles, we shall report some of the answers to these questions. The soundest advice we can offer is this: No matter what type of boating you take up, start out on a small scale, learn the rudiments, the rules of operation, maintenance and operation of your particular choice. You can always grow.

LET'S SAY YOU decide to build. No special knowledge is needed to start out this way. In all probability, a beginner will decide on plywood construction. The Douglas Fir Plywood Association has called in several leading small boat designers and these complete plans are yours for the asking. Available are plans for a 15 and 20-foot sailboat, a 13½-foot outboard and a 9 and 11½-foot skiff.

Drawings, specifications, materials list and building instructions are included in the plans as well as a list of needed hardware.

Surprisingly enough, the cost on any of the above models is well within the prospective builders reach. Prices for best quality lumber and hardware start at approximately $65 for the 9 foot skiff, ranging upward to $133 for the 20-foot sailer. In sail boats the prices do not include sails.

A postcard or letter addressed to this column will get you full information.

The Potomac River Sailing Association staged its third double header sailing race over the weekend, with an above average turnout of seasoned sailors. The older hands knowledge of the winds and tides, proved the deciding factor for most of the top spot winners.

Jack Judy's America and Gordon Knight's Rainbow took a pair of firsts and seconds in the Chesapeake 20's. George Collins, in Tartan, and E. Hoyt, in Alice, did likewise in the Thistle Class, with C. D. Sproul and Dr. Barnhardt sharing third place honors.

Harvey Walsh's Quisquilla and Bill Barker's Suntan, each shared a first and second, in the Snipe Class. Len Penso and Frank Kraft also split top honors in the smaller Penguins. In the Lightning stanza, Arthur Carnduff and Norman Shaller alternated in the top brackets, with Robert Johnson's Alegro and La Spouse, Arthur Godfrey's former craft, splitting third places.

Karl Gerhard, Harvey Lekson and Russell Parker accounted for top honors in the Comets, with Terry Sholler and John Dallas taking two first and two seconds in the handicap night-cap affair.

With Red Face Williamson Decides Irish Tops After All

By Paul D. Williamson
Notre Dame has it!

An honest confession is good for the soul. The Williamson System's face is red. Notre Dame 48, Tulane 7. No comment except to say a lot of us—including the System—seemed to have been wrong in analyzing the Fightin' Irish of 1949 as being "off-year."

Anyhow, Notre Dame earned No. 1 in Williamson's current national grid rankings. Army remained at No. 2 from the previous week in holding its own against Harvard by 54-14.

Minnesota for mauling mighty Ohio State 27-0 moved from No. 7 to No. 3. That replaced sturdy Oklahoma, which dropped a place to No. 4 by beating Kansas 48-26. Kentucky dropped from first place the previous week to fifth place by virtue of "breathering" 44-0 against modest Citadel.

Among the System's best picks of the week were Boston U. over West Virginia and the Alabama-Tennessee tie.

The Williamson pregame ratings hit the spot on Texas 27, Arkansas 14; California 16, Southern California 10; Dartmouth 27, Colgate 13 and Vanderbilt 22, Florida 17 (closer rated than by most other pickers).

Do you really know your Sunoco Dealer?

SURE, you know he's the man at the Sunoco Station—the friend you count on for good service day and night... but maybe you don't know all that it takes to make this possible. His work, his money and his future are in his business. He's one of over 6,500 men who choose to sell Sunoco Products over all others.

1 HE owns his own business and in 7 out of 10 cases, the station is his. If he rents from us, the rate he pays is in line with the most other merchants in his community pay... and the type of facilities he operates. But whether he rents or owns his station, he uses his own money to stock it with the gasoline, oil, accessories and tools he needs to take care of your car.

2 HE has a definite responsibility to serve you and your neighbors. We strongly believe that a good dealer is a community asset and within a reasonable area he is our sole distributor. If you think his hours are long, so does he. But that's the business he's in—service to you from early morning to late at night.

3 HE sells what we both believe is the finest high test gasoline on the highways. He also sells the motor oils that research and road tests prove work best for all driving. And, to satisfy all kinds of demands and pocketbooks, we package these oils in a variety of containers to fit the motorists' needs.

Our dealer contract does not prohibit the sale of competitive gasolines and motor oils. But, feeling that it is not possible for a dealer to endorse two competing items with equal enthusiasm, we have made it our policy to select those dealers who are enthusiastic about our products.

5 HE decides what hours to keep his station open, how many men he needs to do it and the pricing of merchandise so as to be competitive and give you what you want when you want it. We often make joint surveys to help him arrive at these decisions.

6 HE has found you like to do business at attractive stations where there are courteous attendants. He keeps his men in neat uniforms and sees that his place is clean and his service up-to-date.

THE mutual interests of you the customer, the dealer and ourselves are closely related. Without him, you would not be able to get modern Sunoco products and services for your car. Without both of you, we couldn't do business.

$80 Million Worth Of Art Arriving

'Private Eye' Seeks Her Here

MRS. LOIS JEWELL
... missing from Michigan

Eighty million dollars worth of Austrian-owned art is expected to arrive here Saturday in a Navy refrigerator storehouse.

The collection will be shown at the National Gallery of Art for two months starting November 20. Subsequently it will be exhibited at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, the Chicago Art Institute, and the DeYoung Museum, San Francisco.

The collection, which has been on display in London, was shipped aboard the USS Malabar because of the desirability of storing the valuable paintings at a temperature of 70 degrees and a humidity of 55 percent, according to the Department of Defense.

The art works will be unloaded at the Naval Gun Factory for transportation to the National Gallery.

Among the 127 paintings are works by Rubens, Rembrandt, Brueghel, Tintoretto, Titian, Velasquez and van Dyck.

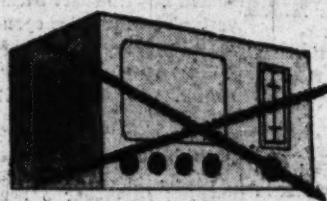

In addition to the pictures, the collection includes tapestries, renaissance bronzes, jewelry, goldsmiths' and silversmiths' work, ivories, cameos, illuminated manuscripts and arms and armor. The famous gold salt-cellar made by Benvenuto Cellini and described in his autobiography is among the treasures.

The collection, assembled at the Kunsthistorisches Museum — formerly the Imperial Museum — in Vienna, is accompanied by two curators, Dr. E. H. Bushbeck and Dr. E. V. Strohmmer, also an armorer and chief packer.

William C. Crawford, 34, general manager of the Sterling Secret Service, Detroit, later told a reporter he was seeking Mrs. Lois Jewell, 19, wife of Louis Jewell, Detroit furniture store operator whose brother is president of the Allegheny Asphalt Co. of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Jewell vanished September 1 after a family tiff, Crawford said. He has followed her trail through Michigan, Illinois, California and now the District. She stayed at the Statler Hotel here one night, then for several weeks at a rooming house, Crawford said.

VA Needs $17,500,000
To Save 7800 Jobs,
500 Field Offices

The Veterans Administration must fire 7800 additional administrative employees and shut down 500 of its field offices unless Congress gives it a last-minute appropriation of $17,500,000.

The cutback estimates were given to both House and Senate appropriation leaders by Administrator Carl R. Gray.

Senate action on the fund request will be taken in a day or so. The House voted to allow VA to transfer 15 million dollars to its administrative fund from monies already appropriated.

In his letter to congressional leaders, Gray explained that Congress made a reduction of $30,480,000 in VA's general administrative fund. He said 13 million dollars of it could be absorbed without harming service rendered to veterans. He then explained:

"However, to reduce further to keep within the available appropriations will require drastic action involving the closing of over 490 contact and 11 regional offices with the dismissal of approximately 3300 employees in the closed offices before January 1, and in addition, further reduction in staff of approximately 4300 employees throughout VA."

"This action would seriously affect the quality of services now available to veterans and their dependents in respect to compensation and pension, insurance, education and training, loans for homes or business purposes and other claims for benefits to which the veterans are entitled by law."

Gray explained that the VA administrative staff had been cut from $2,241 to 71,964 from August, 1948, to July of this year. The threatened reduction wouldn't apply to the GI insurance dividend and hospital programs. Even if VA gets the entire $17,500,000, some of its activities would have to be curtailed to absorb the $13 million dollars referred to by Gray.

Capitol Hill: Several Senators have teamed up to try to get a last-minute pay raise for legislative employees. Their proposed amendment to the second deficiency bill provides:

"That the salary ceiling for administrative assistants and top committee clerks be boosted from $10,330 to $10,864; that the ceiling for Senate secretaries be raised to $9600, and the No. 2 secretaries be boosted to $7600. The raises wouldn't be mandatory. Each Senator would be given $9600 additional each year for office help and equipment and he could use it at his discretion. All other legislative employees would get a 5 percent salary hike."

PAY ACTION: As expected, the House yesterday gave its approval to the conference reports on the classified and postal pay raise bills. Action was taken by voice vote after a few minutes of debate.

Both reports were sent to the Senate for final Congressional action. They will then be sent to the White House for the President's signature.

The President is believed certain to sign both bills into law before the end of this week. In the event, the $140 average pay raise for classified employees would be effective for most Federal people here as of October 30. The workers would get their first increased pay checks for the October 30-November 12 pay period. Due to the payday lag, they would get these checks from November 15 to 22.

A futile effort was made yesterday to try to persuade several of the conferees to change the wage schedule proposed for employees in Grade 11 through 14. At the last moment, the conferees rejected a proposed Administration compromise for these four grades and substituted the House-approved rates for them.

The Administration suggested five $250 step-ups for each grade. The conferees adopted a system of six $200 steps. As a result, any number of employees in these grades will get pay raises of as little as $7 a year.

In addition, some employees will get what amounts to a salary cut. They are those who are slated for in-grade promotions soon. The bill would cut the in-grade raises to $200 each. But the salary ceiling for these and all other grades have been lifted and the grade 11 through 14 employees who stay in Government are bound to eventually benefit by the bill.

NOTES: Civil Service has an exam open for translators to pay $2724 to $8509 to start. . . Dr. Carl L. Larson has been appointed director of Public Health Service's Rocky Mountain station at Hamilton, Mont. He is assistant chief of the laboratory of infectious diseases at the Bethesda National Institute of Health.

Drive Revived For Southeast Swimming Pool

Senate Committee Supports Request By Interior for Non-Racial Tank

The Senate Appropriations Committee last night revived the Interior Department's drive for funds to build a swimming pool at Fort Stanton Park in Southeast Washington.

In reporting out the second supplemental appropriations bill, the committee included the requested $175,000 pool item. The House turned it down last week.

The motion to insert the Fort Stanton pool funds was made by Senator Carl Hayden (D., N. Mex.) after a "very brief discussion."

If supported on the Senate floor, probably today or Wednesday, the pool proposal will be taken to conference with the House.

Assistant Secretary of Interior C. Girard Davidson appealed to the Senate group last Thursday for the money to construct a pool to relieve the "congested conditions" at nearby Anacostia pool.

The language of the Senate supply bill carries no word, one way or the other, on how the pool should be operated, except that it would be run by Interior's National Park Service.

All pools operated in the District by the Interior Department, however, are on a nonsegregated basis, while those operated by the Recreation Department are segregated. After President Truman sent the request for the appropriation for the Fort Stanton project to Congress, Interior Department officials, including Assistant Secretary Davidson, made it clear the pool is expected to be run on a nonsegregated basis.

Davidson has explained, however, that a new Fort Stanton pool would relieve the "congested conditions" at nearby Anacostia pool. The Anacostia facility was closed by the Interior Department last June 30 after white and Negro clashes took place there on three consecutive days.

Fort Stanton is near a large Negro housing development.

One of the Interior's six swimming pools here is located in the rapidly-expanded Southeast section of the city.

Recreation Board Due To Study Krug Plea

The District Recreation Board at its next meeting will consider a plea by Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug for community action to assure operation of swimming pools on a nonsegregated basis by next summer.

Harry S. Wender, board chairman, said yesterday he has requested a copy of a speech made by the cabinet official Saturday night before the American Council on Human Rights, preliminary to laying the matter before the board at its November session.

Krug's proposal brought an adverse response from a veteran adversary. Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) told the House that unless Krug gives up his present policies on eliminating segregation in the Nation's Capital, "he ought to resign or be impeached."

Rankin declared Krug's "order to wipe segregation in the various playgrounds . . . here in the District is nothing in the world but a Communist movement which, if carried out, is bound to stir race trouble all over the country."

Krug Saturday night declared, "Public facilities are going to be open to all on an equal basis and I don't mean separate but equal. That's the way it's going to be."

He urged "careful planning and intelligent work so that all our citizens in the National Capital will have an opportunity to enjoy the recreational facilities and not be faced with an obsolete legal doctrine that dates back 50 years."

The Very Rev. John W. Suter, dean of the cathedral, will speak at the luncheon and heads of the National Cathedral School for Girls, Beauvoir Elementary School, St. Albans School for Boys and College of Preachers will be guests of honor.

Court Backs Pilot's Widow
In Right to Sue RFC Here

A Washington widow won the right yesterday to continue her $100,000 damage suit against the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the death in December, 1944, of her husband, an airplane pilot.

She is Mrs. Virginia M. Lewis of 1118 Staples st. ne. Her husband was Bernard M. Lewis. He was killed in a plane crash at the Omaha Municipal Airport when riding as a passenger "in line of duty" as pilot for the Defense Plant Corp.

Twenty-two months after his death, Mrs. Lewis brought the action. The defendant corporation moved to throw it out of court because District laws require such actions to be started within 12 months of the death. Nebraska statutes, however, allow them to be filed within 24 months.

The District Court held with the RFC disallowing the suit. Mrs. Lewis' attorneys appealed, and the United States Court of Appeals yesterday reversed the District Court. It held that because Lewis' death occurred in Nebraska, the statute of limitations in that jurisdiction should apply.

Judge H. W. Edgerton, and James W. Proctor, sitting Judge H. Church Ford, dissenting by assignment, heard the appeal. The defendant corporation moved to throw it out of court because

For District Neely Seeks Action on Rights Bill

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) said last night he will seek Senate District committee action this week on his bill for setting up a human rights commission in Washington.

This was disclosed by Senator Neely following a morning hearing on the proposed measure. Two persons opposed the plan in full. A number of others, supporting the idea in principle, called for changes to make it more specific in ways that Senator Neely said would guarantee a filibuster against it.

Senator Neely, chairman of the District Committee, gave his indorsement to two changes in his bill proposed during the hearing. One would cut the size of the commission from 25 to 11 members. The second would restrict membership to District residents.

There had been no residence requirement in the bill he introduced.

Named by President
Under the bill, the commission would be named by the President, with members subject to Senate confirmation. It would have independent status in the District government and its main assignment would be to establish and maintain meticulous observation of the Golden Rule in interracial relations in the District.

As the hearing opened, Dr. Vincent C. Browne, of the Washington chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, and Mrs. John C. McClintock, of the District League of Women Voters, in turn suggested a sharper specification of the commission's job.

Dr. Browne and Mrs. McClintock both indorsed the idea of a commission smaller than 25 members. They praised Neely for sponsoring the commission plan.

Sharp opposition to the commission plan was voiced by Mrs. Ernest W. Howard of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, and Mrs. B. G. McIlwaine, testifying as an individual.

Called Superfluous
Mrs. Howard said the commission was superfluous—"It's a sin of presumption when we know we have these rights given us by God."

She said that if the commission were set up "we'd have smear campaigns, we'd have neighbor against neighbor—you can never legislate kindness." She said the courts, laws, and the Constitution provide adequate protection to minorities.

Mrs. McIlwaine said she opposed the bill because "it's contrary to God's law."

The Rev. Dr. John W. Rustin, speaking for the Washington Federation of Churches, strongly indorsed the commission plan.

He said that the emphasis on rights should not overshadow the fact that rights imply responsibilities. He said the commission should be composed of "local people who love this city."

More than 300 persons, including Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.) and Mrs. Clarence F. Swift, president of the Washington branch, American University Women, gathered at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw., to pay tribute to her.

Dr. Terrell was the association's first president, serving three terms from 1896 to 1901.

Expansion of Alexandria
Jail Urged by Commission

Alexandria's Jail Commission yesterday found fault with a number of things at the city jail, but placed emphasis on one item in particular: Lack of space.

The three-man commission, whose quarterly report was released by Corporation Court Judge William P. Woods, asserted that "the jail capacity just does not meet the needs of our present population."

From the standpoint of health and safety, the report said, the jail's capacity is considered to be 78 prisoners. As of yesterday, according to City Sgt. J. Frank Moriarty, 114 persons were being detained there.

The situation is one that periodically requires Moriarty to inform Alexandria Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan that he has no room for additional prisoners.

Then, he said, he submits a list of "short termers" to the judge, and the latter frees those persons who are closest to completing their terms. Last week the judge turned 17 loose; since April, when Moriarty took office, the sergeant estimates 100 have been freed before their time was up.

Besides enlarging the jail, the commission handed in these recommendations:

1. Every effort should be made to compel state authorities to transfer their prisoner promptly.

2. There should be no undue delay in presenting cases to grand and trial juries.

The commission, composed of James S. Douglas, M. H. Burchell and Dr. James A. Gooch, praised the jail as "comfortable, warm and sufficiently aired" when not overcrowded. The members noted that food and kitchen facilities are good.

They warned, however, that overcrowded conditions might impair prisoners' health.

The commission also recommended that a warning siren be installed immediately; that present gates be replaced; that mesh screens be installed over certain windows; and that spikes and barbed wire be erected facing the jail yard to make it secure while prisoners exercise and, at the same time do away with need for guards to be present.

Sergeant Moriarty reported his budget will include a request for a new cell block—a 30-cell addition. At present, he said, some prisoners are sleeping four to a cell. A cell, he added, is 7 feet by 7 feet. He will also ask for six additional guards.

Judge Woods declined comment on the report. He said a copy of it would be forwarded to the City Council. The council may appoint a committee of its own to investigate jail conditions, he said.

Falls Church police yesterday had apparently cleared up the mystery of the "Skylight Robbery" with arrest of two 12-year-old boys.

The youths, who police said entered the skylight of the 211 Grill, across S. Washington st. from the police station, on Sunday night, had taken six cartons of cigarettes, 60 cigars and 24 packages of chewing gum. Two 6-year-old boys were used as lookouts during the robbery, police said.

Police Chief E. H. Howe said the loot has been recovered in a vacant house near Hillwood Square. The boys will be given a hearing in Fairfax County Juvenile Court on October 25.

Chief Howe said the boys were found at their homes yesterday after one of them told his father about their entry into the 211 Grill.

District Measures

The Senate yesterday quickly passed and sent to the President a bill authorizing a three-judge increase on the Municipal Court bench here.

The trial court is presently limited to 10 jurists.

The judgeship measure was one of 10 District bills approved by the Senate on a call of the calendar, seven of which only await the President's signature before becoming law.

One of the bills sent to the White House last night would grant about 1000 retired police and firemen an average $179 sum as a retroactive pension increase. It represents their share of the $330 pay boost recently voted to all District employees.

In voting the judge-increase measure, the Senate accepted the House version in which residence requirements are broadened to permit lawyers living in Alexandria, and the four counties surrounding the District to serve on the Municipal bench.

Existing law requires appointees to be bona fide District residents. Yesterday's Senate action sent to the President bills to:

1. Eliminate the Washington residence requirement for eligibility to the Commission on Mental Health.

2. Bar "commercialization" and "exploitation" of any materials removed from the White House during renovation. The authority over the historic materials is vested in the Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion.

3. Grant further time to the District government in paying owners for property damages resulting from extension of Eastern ave.

4. Authorize installation of a carillon in the Arlington Cemetery amphitheater. It would be purchased and maintained by the Amvets.

5. Clarify personal property tax exemption on property owned here by the Sons of the American Revolution, and

In another action, the Senate Public Works Committee reported out the House-passed bill to do a $16,400,000, four-year lighting and air-conditioning job on the Capital buildings.

School Leaders Called Handicap In Murder Case

In District 4-Member Staff for Crime Study

A four-member staff is to be hired with the $10,000 for which the House is being asked to launch a special investigation of Washington crime and law enforcement.

Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.), chairman of the District subcommittee in charge of the investigation, outlined his proposed staff setup yesterday after a one-hour executive meeting of the subcommittee.

He said the plan is to hire two investigators, a chief counsel and a secretary, if the requested $10,000 fund is approved.

Next step toward clearing the fund will be made Wednesday, when the House subcommittee on accounts will consider the request for it.

Accounts subcommittee approval would put the question up to the House Administration Committee, which could then submit it to the House for final action.

Davis said he hopes that by the end of this year the staff will have gathered enough facts so that the subcommittee can start holding hearings in January. He said no decision has been made on how the hearings will be conducted, or whether they will be open or not.

Man in Bathroom Captured After
Screams of Girl, 6

A 25-year-old housebreaking suspect was found covering in the rear of the 2300 block of 15th st. nw. last night soon after a 6-year-old girl screamed an alarm.

Dora Notes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Notes, had left the bathroom in her home, 2301 15th st. nw., when she saw a man standing in her bedroom.

The man fled as she screamed. Mrs. Notes vainly chased the intruder for half a block. Meantime, two neighbors, Ralph Wellens, 2203 15th st. nw., and B. F. Coffman, 2307 15th st. nw., took up the chase, and said they found John D. Stevens, 25, of 2026 Fortner pl. nw., hiding in the bushes.

The man was arrested by Pts. Delbert D. Brill and David H. Gould, and charged with housebreaking.

The woman, 35, a widow and the mother of two children, swore out a warrant and Freeman was arrested Saturday. Police reported she told them she went to the warehouse about 3 p. m. to get some papers left in furniture she stored there. Freeman then attacked her, she told police.

Freeman was released in $2000 bond pending the hearing. The warehouse, police said, is in the 200 block of South Union st.

Mary Haworth's
MailWorried Wife Feels It Is Wrong of Husband
To Take Unmarried Girl Coworker to Dinner;
Man Sees Nothing Wrong in It, He Tells Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Bob and I have been married 14 years and we have one child, 13 years old. Bob is a good provider, doesn't drink and never goes out, and I had always trusted him; so you can imagine the shock I got recently, when another person informed me that Bob was seeing a single girl after he got off work.

I asked Bob about it and he admitted it; but he said all there was to it was an occasional dinner together after work—they work at the same place—and he didn't see anything wrong with that. However, I think it was wrong because he is married, and because the girl told this other party that she is in love with Bob. As to that, Bob says if she is, she has never let on to him.

Usually that sort of thing doesn't stop at just having dinner together, and when I mentioned this to Bob he just laughed and said that Libby is a very nice kid and that she didn't mean anything to him. But if she doesn't mean anything to him, why would he take her to dinner? He never takes me out to eat. We always eat at home.

I want to know if it is all right for a married man to take other girls out to dinner? Bob hasn't promised that it won't happen again, and how can I ever trust him again? There will always be fear in my heart.

A. P.

Man Knows Well, He's Doing Wrong

DEAR A. P.: From the secular viewpoint in white collar circles of modern society, doubtless it isn't rated a crime against propriety for a married man to dine in public with a single woman occasionally, either by chance or pre-arrangement, if they have some impersonal basis for friendship—as, for instance, working together. In our times, since women work so much with men, it is being done more or less—and nobody hanged for it, apparently.

However, on the other hand, any married man normally sensitive to rules of fair play governing married behavior knows in his bones, without being told, that dining with a single woman has entered the field of wrong-doing if he chooses not to mention it to his wife, or if he feels a need to be elaborately "casual" in referring to it, or if the shared intent of the diners is to evoke or encourage "heart"-interest.

From what you say of Bob's responses to your questions, it seems evident that he was on the defensive against his conscience before gossip reached you about his seeing Libby after work. Also, that he feels consciously guilty of unfair play, perhaps to both women. In the goings-on. But because temptation to dally seems stronger than his will (if any) to resist, he clings dishonestly to a self-extenuating argument that he doesn't do anything downright wrong in just having dinner occasionally.

Man's False Air Shocks His Wife

AS I SEE the picture, it is the obstinate whitewash aspect of his current attitude, an elusive falsity of character new to him, a refusal to see straight and recognize errors and dangers,—it is this disarming change in Bob that causes you to feel sick with shock and anxious uncertainty, as if you never could trust him again.

Thus I think it ill becomes him to treat your worry lightly, as if it were a product of your imagination mostly; and the purpose of these remarks is to help him remove the blinders from his eyes.

For advice: 1. Bob ought to face the fact that his traffic with Libby's infatuation is bad for all concerned. 2. You and he should turn over a new leaf and have dinner dates together to break the monotony of "eating in." It is an old political axiom that you can't beat something with nothing—and a practical antidote to his recent pattern of seeing Libby after work is to get dressed up and, with his consent, meet him yourself for pastime occasionally. THESE BEAUTIES were seen at the National Rose Show at Woodward & Lothrop yesterday. Many varieties of the world's favorite flower form a frame for

National Rose Show Draws 18,000

By Lucia Brown

THE ROOM was full of roses—and thousands came to see them—at Woodward & Lothrop's yesterday.

By 5:30 p. m., some 18,000 persons had filed past the magnificent displays of almost 50,000 blossoms at the National Rose Show. It covers half the sixth floor of the store, will end this afternoon at 5:30.

A red-and-white striped rose is among the three new varieties introduced in the show. As yet unnamed, it was developed at Pans, Ill. Another new one is "Happiness," a long-stemmed red rose grown in Indiana and featured in the "Living Portrait of Roses" exhibit. The third is the rich, yellow "Golden Scepter," which comes from New York State and is presented in a royal display built around a huge crown.

On a Christmas Tree

Roses that bloom on a Christmas tree were drawing many admiring "oh's" and "ah's" yesterday. Dozen of lovely red blossoms are attached to a big "snow-bound" evergreen that centers one of the model rooms. Beneath it, children are playing with Christmas toys.

"Fairytale Roses" is another exhibit that is fascinating to youngsters. Here are Alice in Wonderland, the gingham dog and the calico cat, and many other nurseryland favorites, all in a setting of beautiful roses.

"The Calendar of Roses" offers ideas for flower arrangements the year round. "Roses in a Woman's Life" shows appropriate roses for different events. Other exhibits include a bridal tableau, anniversary tables, a "Gentlemen Prefer Roses" feature, and one showing how to make a vase of roses last a week.

Sponsored by Roses, Inc.

All the roses in the show are in water, except for the corsages and arm bouquets. Tiny bottles, concealed in such arrangements as the huge red-and-white fan of 5000 blossoms, take care of that.

Roses, Inc., national organization of growers, sponsors the show. This group is now holding its annual convention at Hotel Washington. Granville Gude of Washington is the show chairman, and L. H. Potter is chairman of the group of retail florists donating their time to creating the arrangements.

Consider in Selecting Clothes for Children:

Does His Color Match His Mood?

By Peggy Preston

DID YOU know that your precious 2-year-old may develop a bad case of nerves if you put her in a bright red dress? And that, on the other hand, she can become quiet as a lamb in a frock of pale green or soft rose?

Such are the deductions of two clothing specialists in a new book entitled "Clothing for Children," published this week. Authors are Henrietta M. Thompson and Lucille Rae, prominent home economists, and their little tome is packed with helpful information on small fry clothing.

While their book touches on every phase of planning and organizing a youngster's wardrobe, the chapters on the psychological aspects of color and style are the most newsworthy so far as parents are concerned.

Affect His Personality

The writers believe that clothes can definitely affect a child's personality. In proving their point they cite the case of a little girl who was always over-dressed. At the age of 5 she had a white fur coat, an elaborate velvet dress and other garments too luxurious for a child. She became overly clothes conscious and bragged about them to other children. As a result, other little girls avoided her and by the time she was 10, she had developed a nasty, unhappy personality.

Miss Thompson and Miss Rae recommend that mothers and teachers call the attention of children to examples of good taste in clothes. Interesting color combinations or unusual design motifs in fabrics, if mentioned to a child of preschool age, will result in increased creative appreciation in later years.

Economic Factors

Economic factors are considered in other chapters of the book. Included is information on planning wardrobes for infants, the preschool child and grade school boys and girls.

Clothing is discussed in relation to the family budget. There is also important data on remodeling and altering wearing apparel, color choices, texture and design, trimming, care and storage.

Fash Designs to Be Shown

IMPORTANT fashion news locally is that the fall collection of Jacques Fath, French designer, will be shown Friday, October 28, for the benefit of the Goodwill Guild.

The occasion will be the guild's first open meeting of the season, to be held at the Shoreham Hotel. The fashion show, presented by Julius Garfinckel & Co., will begin at 3 p. m., and will be followed by a tea. Tickets may be purchased at $2.50 each at the Goodwill Industries, 1218 New Hampshire ave. nw. They will also be available at the Shoreham on the day of the event.

Announcement of the event is made by Mrs. Sydney L. Hechinger, former vice president of the guild, who upon the resignation of Mrs. Wiley Rutledge as president, was appointed to head the organization.

HERE'S A NEW YARN ABOUT A SWEATER—Reason for the sly grin of our moppet (seated) is that while you may think she is modeling a twin sweater set, she actually is not. The garment she is wearing is called a "double-duty" sweater and consists of a cardigan, with a half slip-over stitched to the inside. She pulls it over her head to get into it, and when it is buttoned up it looks like the one worn by older sister (standing). Made of 100 per cent wool, it comes in several color combinations and in sizes 3 to 6, and 7 to 14. Available soon at The Hecht Co.

Ask Anne About Removing Concrete From Bricks

Some of the outside brick on our house is defaced by concrete which "ran," apparently while in a thin state. Can you tell me how the concrete can be removed from the bricks without injuring them? E. L. C.

Concrete on brick can be softened and removed by moistening it with one part muriatic (hydrochloric) acid and 20 parts of water. Allow it to act for a few minutes and flush off with plenty of water. The acid should soften the cement so it can be washed or easily scraped off. If necessary, the application can be repeated. After all cement is off, all acid remaining on the surface should be neutralized with water to which ammonia has been added, followed by rinsing.

As you no doubt know, muriatic acid is very corrosive, so old clothes, shoes and rubber gloves should be worn throughout the operation to protect yourself. The acid will have no effect on brick, but should not be allowed to remain on or to penetrate mortar joints.

I have some infant's furniture which I want to repaint. I have been told that there is a non-poisonous (lead free) paint on the market. Since I have been unsuccessful in my search for it I would appreciate any information which you may have to enable me to find this type of paint. L. D. W.

Because of the recent widespread interest in this problem, I have gone into this subject quite thoroughly. I have discussed it with chemists at the Paint, Varnish, and Lacquer Association, a doctor in the United States Department of Industrial Hygiene, with firms selling paint, and a New York firm which specializes in the manufacture of nontoxic pigments.

As a result of the discussions these facts stand out:

1. There is not now on the market a paint in which all the ingredients are guaranteed nontoxic.
2. An entirely normal child will not eat enough paint to do itself harm. The chewing of large quantities of paint is an abnormal urge in a child not found in one out of a hundred. The possible exception is a child when teething. The Industrial Hygiene doctor said it is medically possible for toxic poisons from chewing paint to enter the blood stream directly when there are broken skin surfaces on the gums caused by teething. It is doubtful, however, if enough would enter either this way to cause death. An alert parent would surely check the baby before any harm could be done.
3. Because some pigments in paints are toxic if taken into the body it is recommended that for infant's furniture, white or pastels be chosen and bright colors avoided.
4. When buying paints for children's furniture ask for titanium dioxide or lead-free paints and check the table of contents on the container for the possible presence of other toxic ingredients. Your very best ally in choosing a nontoxic paint is a reliable paint dealer with long continued experience. Such a person will thoroughly know the ingredients in his products.

The entire subject of safe coatings is receiving much attention right now and a completely safe paint should soon appear on the market. One firm which manufactures safe pigments for all sorts of children's products such as crayons, water paints, printed food and candy wrappers, etc., states that they believe the "all-over" subject of safe coatings will eventually receive the necessary Federal Government attention so that specifications for the complete manufacture of safe coatings will be set up."

How can I best clean a natural straw bag (such as were worn so much in Washington this past summer). It is a finely woven one, but is quite soiled with dark spots now. E. F.

You may be able to improve the appearance of the bag by dusting dry cleaning powder into the straw, letting it stand to absorb soil and brushing it out. Or, you could mix carbon tetrachloride with corn starch, rub it into the straw and brush out after allowing some time to absorb the soil. Repeat if necessary.

How do you go about painting pictures on glass? E. D.

To paint pictures on glass use a sheet of window glass. The picture may be transferred to the glass from a simple magazine picture, a silhouette, or one of your own drawings by placing the glass over the picture and outlining it in paint or sealing wax paint. The glass will be held securely over the picture and it will not slip if you place the picture in the middle of a large bread board. Place the glass over it and then place thumb tacks all around the edge of the glass. This will also catch the edge of the design paper and hold it securely to the board.

Paint made especially for use on glass can be purchased at stores where artists' supplies are sold or you could use artists' paints. If you wish to use sealing wax paint, prepare it by dissolving a sealing wax stick in denatured alcohol. Place the sealing wax in a container and barely cover it with denatured alcohol. Allow it to stand for at least ten hours, then stir it and reduce it to a creamy state with alcohol; after which more alcohol is added to thin it to desired consistency.

When the design or picture is outlined, complete the picture by filling in the solid masses.

To mount the picture, cut a piece of cardboard the same size as the picture. This cardboard may be covered with tin or aluminum foil to give a silver background or you could use plain gold paper sold where package wrappings are carried.

Place the completely dried painted glass with the paint against the silver or gold mounting and bind the glass to the cardboard with passepartout tape or place the picture in a frame which fits. If you wish to frame the picture it would be wise to have your glass cut to fit the frame exactly when you buy it.

Could you please tell me if there is any way to remove press shine from a black crepe dress? E. V. M.

Lightly sponge the shiny area with a cloth wrung out of water to which a little vinegar has been added. While the material is wet, place a dry cloth over it and press with a warm iron. Do not press until completely dry.

Adjutant General For D.C. Not in Sight

On GI Bill VA Wins Fee Fight In Court

The Veterans Administration was victorious in District Court here yesterday in its fight to govern fees paid to private schools for training veterans under the GI Bill of Rights.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire granted a petition of Carl R. Gray, Jr., Veterans Administrator, and other officials, for summary judgment dismissing the lawsuits of two private schools which attacked the VA regulations.

VA officials estimated that the court's action saved "at least 25 million dollars" and probably much more for the Government for the period between July 1, 1948, when the VA tuition regulations became effective, and August 24, 1949, when Congress went into law.

The regulation required all institutions training veterans to charge tuition at the "customary" rates. Where such institutions have been established since June 22, 1944, the VA regulations said, there is no "customary" rate and in lieu of it, the schools must negotiate "fair and reasonable" rates of tuition.

More than 4000 private training schools which have sprung up since June 22, 1944, were affected. The Metropolitan Training Center of New York City, and the Michigan Technological School of Detroit, attacked the regulation in court here, seeking an injunction against its operation.

Judge McGuire held that the suit against Gray and the VA officials was in effect a suit against the United States and therefore, the court has no jurisdiction because the Government has not consented to be sued.

The VA warned GI bill students yesterday to make certain that the schools they attend are eligible under the new law passed August 24.

Eligibility certificates issued to veterans before November 1, 1949, were in effect a suit against the United States and therefore, the court has no jurisdiction because the Government has not consented to be sued.

The District National Guard, which has been without an adjutant general since August 19, now has a qualified candidate but cannot find the funds with which to pay him.

Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, who took over command of the guard in July, has asked the District Government to allot $9297 a year for employment of a full-time adjutant general, but has slight hope of getting any money before the 1951 budget is acted on.

At present, Capt. Stewart G. Cook, assistant adjutant general, is handling the post, but this is not a satisfactory arrangement.

General Abendroth said yesterday. He has a "well qualified" Army colonel interested in the post, but cannot obtain salary money, other than $900 a year for part-time work during drill periods.

The only two sources of funds are the department of the Army, which has declared that paying for General Abendroth's services is as far as it will go, and the District Government.

District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler said the Commissioners recently received a request for $9297 a year to pay an adjutant general in the rank of colonel, but no action is planned to obtain this sum for the remainder of this fiscal year. The recommendation will be considered in preparing the 1951 budget for the year beginning July 1, he said.

The position has been vacant since General Abendroth asked for the removal of Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, a veteran District National Guard official, in August. The Army previously paid his salary, but when General Abendroth was appointed as a full-time adjutant general, the responsibility for his salary, instead.

One on the Aisle— A First Nighter Scans 50 Years

By Richard L. Coe

WELL, EVEN THOUGH this hick town of ours doesn't have a theater, you can still read about it. These recent weeks the book publishers have been piling out volumes about the fabulous invalid and its people.

At the top of my list is "Matinee Tomorrow," by Ward Morehouse. Of all New York's dramatic critics, none has carried on so frank a love affair with the theater world as the Sun's breezy aisle-sitter. In 300-odd pages, Ward delves into the past 50 years of Gotham theater and each page is a jaunty, informative delight.

Using the same affectionate, breezy style which makes his column, "Broadway After Dark," such pleasurable reading, Morehouse dips into his own 30 years in New York and for the previous 20 has consulted principals of the period as well as yellowed newspapers. Because he's so in love with his work, he's able to take you along with him; stylistically, it's a zestful aid, and because his friendships are so widespread he's able to include many an anecdote that will no doubt creep into gossip columns, under fresh guise, as "news."

With his first nights and anecdotes he also includes 30 photographic pages of scenes, players, writers and critics.

He begins with Mrs. Leslie Carter swinging from her bell in "The Heart of Maryland" and takes you through "the magnificence" of "Death of a Salesman." What a fabulous parade comes between those two!

You see, to skip about a bit: The formation of Equity and George M. Cohan's battle to defeat it; Booth Tarkington tells a young man he'll write a play for him. The play was "Clarence" and Alfred Lord the young man; Marjorie Rambeau's husband turns down "Rain" without letting her read it, and it makes Jeanne Eagels a star for 174 weeks; Matinee Idol Edgar Selwyn looks in his mirror one night, says "How silly" and turns to a producing career of distinction; Maxine Elliott tells how she and Lee Shubert borrowed money to build a theater, thus denying the dogged legend that J. P. Morgan built her that house on 39th st. Florence Reed rings down the curtain on a drunken John Barrymore; Frances Starr confesses how her teenage hit in "The Easiest Way" has dogged her all her life; Howard Lindsay meets Russell Crouse by waving across an alley on 52d st. "Life With Father" came later; Laurette Taylor and her "Peg o' My Heart" company play a morning matinee to an audience of one: Sarah Bernhardt. He points out how, through the years, the producers have changed from men who put their own small fortunes into gambles to financiers who must interest scores to invest in a play.

For the future, Morehouse is characteristically cheerful: "If you are disturbed about the state of the living stage, you might well save your tears. The theater has great powers of resistance and recuperation. It has been abused by Hollywood, it has been abused by the crafts unions, it has been deplored by the critics and given up for dead by some of its own people. "But it fights back. If it ever disappears entirely from the City of New York, driven out by production costs or an atomic war, it will turn up in Wichita and in Santa Fe and in Atlanta and in Grand Forks. The theater, I suspect, will be an undiminished force in this republic when the year of 2050 comes around. I regret that I won't be here."

Of himself, Critic Morehouse is amusingly shrewd. He once wrote a middling successful newspaper play, "Gentleman of the Press," the same season as that which raved over "The Front Page." He doesn't admit his authorship, simply calls it "a gentler newspaper play."

Of Washington, he notes the September, 1906, opening at the Belasco of "The Great Divide," an opening only Critic Frank P. Morse recognized as an Event and which propelled him into these very columns as dramatic critic of The Washington Post.

However, of Washington today he says not a word, though he notes other cities of the East, peripatetic that he is.

Prof. George Odell's monumental "Annals of the New York Stage" (by last count 13 volumes) may be the longhaired, authoritative guide to theatrical Americans, but for sheer readability, Morehouse's packed volume is tops. The American theater owes a bow to it most enchanted chronicler.

Woodward's Store Contract Is Approved

By S. Oliver Goodman
Stockholders of Woodward & Lothrop yesterday approved award of a contract to the Charles H. Tompkins Co., for the building of a new store in Montgomery County, Md.

The annual meeting was convened by questions from James Fuller of Hartford, Conn., who has received national notoriety for his hobby of attending major corporate meetings and needing officials.

Because the head of the Tompkins firm is also a director of the department store and member of its executive committee, the contract award was put before shareholders. Fuller sought full details of the contract and then, surprisingly, seconded the motion to award the contract to Woodward.

John Tyssowski, Woodward's board chairman, was the target for Fuller's questions. Tyssowski took the edge off some of Fuller's sharper queries with his good-natured and adroit handling of them.

Several of Fuller's suggestions, Tyssowski said, will be given further consideration. One was that earnings and sales figures should be reported more often than once a year. In response to a question on directors' fees, Tyssowski said that each director, other than those serving also as officers, received $100 a meeting.

Pointing out that earnings in the past fiscal year have risen appreciably while sales have held about steady, Tyssowski praised the "young and untired officer team" that was put in charge of Woodward operations two years ago. He said that the past year's results have justified the confidence placed in the new officers. Average age of the new officers, he pointed out, is 43 years as compared with 55 years in 1947.

Stockholders reelected directors as follows: John Tyssowski, chairman; James W. Anderson, Clarence Dodge, John T. Koehler, A. Lothrop Luttrell, Andrew Parker, Brainerd W. Parker, Philip M. Talbot, Charles H. Tompkins, and Lloyd B. Wilson.

At an afternoon meeting of directors, Andrew Parker was reelected president and all other officers also were reelected.

CONVENTION: Among speakers today at the annual convention of the Maryland Savings & Loan League in Baltimore were William K. Divers and O. K. LaRoue, executives of the Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, and Carl H. Ellington, president of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Washington.

NEW DIRECTOR: John C. Wood was elected a director of Julius Garfinkel & Co., Inc., for a three-year term at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday.

Wood is president of Brothers of New York, a wholly owned subsidiary of Garfinkel & Co. Wood also was associated with the firm of Wood, B. & G. in 1946, after retiring from the United States Air Force as a lieutenant colonel. Prior to the war, he was a vice president and director of B. Altman & Co. of New York. Reelected to Garfinkel's directorate for three-year terms were Richard P. Dunn and James M. Johnston. All officers were reelected as follows: Dunn, board chairman; William E. Schmid, president; Elizabeth Fairall, Gordon A. O'Neill and Arthur Madison, vice presidents; Jennings A. Snyder, secretary and treasurer; Irene W. Streeter, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer.

DIP FORECAST: More than 250 Washingtonians yesterday heard predictions that general business next year will dip about 5 percent from this year's average, but that prices of most commodities would be generally stable. Speakers at the annual Babson Conference in the Willard Hotel were Arthur C. Babson, vice president of Babson's Reports, Inc.; Kenneth V. Barry, and Earl L. Smith, also of the Babson staff. "With two out of five workers employed by the Government and an expected sharp increase in military and defense activity, Washington businessmen may expect 1950 to be close to the peak levels of 1949," Babson said.

ODD LOTS: Steel operations, due to strike entering another week, are scheduled at 9.3 per cent of rated capacity, same as last week. Same week a year ago operations were 99.1 percent of capacity. . . Advisory board of branches of American Security & Trust Co. visited the Southwest Branch at 7th and E sts. sw. after a luncheon yesterday in Naylor's Seafood Restaurant. Esso Standard Oil Co. hiked price on heavy fuel oil 15 cents a barrel at all its terminal points from Maine to Louisiana. . . Britain produced 32,222 autos during August and allocated 20,108 of them for export. . . Says the fortnightly market letter of Auchincloss, Parker & Redpath: "It is much cheaper today to buy into a business than to start one."

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Terry McAdams of the Agriculture Department will speak on "Office Layout and Arrangement" at a meeting tonight of the Washington Chapter, National Office Management Association, in the Dodge Hotel. . . John Hildinger, retired major general and former director of the Army's Civil Affairs Division, has been elected a director of Pressed Steel Car Co., Inc. . . John B. Shipman and Associates, Inc., have opened a new advertising and public relations office at 927 15th st. sw.

Stock Prices Depressed by Profit Taking

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—In its sharpest set-back in a month, the stock market today lost fractions to more than 2 points.

The reversal was not one of major proportions, however, and did not come as an unexpected development to Wall Street.

With the market around its highest point of the year, there has been steady profit taking for several days. Today there was a little more than usual, brokers said, and that helped along the drop.

Prices were down right from the beginning of the market with a few exceptions, notably in the gold group. A very early recovery attempt failed. A rebound from the day's lows later in the session, however, continued to the close of the market.

Rails were the hardest hit of the major groups. Before the day ended, they had come back part way but ended off fractions to more than 2 points.

The radio-television issues bounced around considerably. At one time these were more than a point. They were the first to start a recovery and finished with fractional losses and similar gains.

Magnovox held to the upside all the way through.

Oil stocks and filled without concerted direction as a group. The loss found them all down but with the most extended losses partially recovered.

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Cotton futures turned weak in late dealings today under pressure of speculation that new crop legislation touched off the selling.

Two Servicemen Held in Rape Case

Three Charges Policeman Indicted on Rape Count

An Arlington County grand jury yesterday handed down 22 criminal indictments, three of them against a county policeman accused of attempting to rape an attractive housewife September 29.

Suspended Police Pvt. Francis E. Dodson, 31, 1984 S. 12th rd., was named in two indictments charging housebreaking and one accusing him of attempted rape. He is charged with entering the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Jack Bartels, 2810-B S. 16th rd. at gunpoint and attempting to rape Mrs. Bartels after husband had been locked in a closet.

Dodson, who was disarmed by Bartels after he escaped from the closet, was shot in the right leg by Air Force Col. William E. Elder, a neighbor of the Bartels, who responded to Mrs. Bartels' screams for help.

The grand jury also returned a murder indictment against Leonard H. Cochran, 37, 1745 N. Culpeper st., accused of the shotgun slaying of Melvin Lee Daniels, 24, 1813 N. Cameron st., on Sunday afternoon.

The jurors declined to return an indictment against William A. Martin, 817 N. 22d st., who had been accused of raping a 17-year-old Government worker last May 10. Court officials said the jury rejected the presentment as "no true bill" after learning the complaining witness had refused to testify.

Charles H. Tapp, 19, 1302 Lee hwy., was indicted on a charge of raping a 25-year-old woman in his apartment last July.

Other indictments were brought in against Richard A. Selden, accused of six counts of housebreaking; Richard D. Mackay, charged with grand larceny; John Wesley Atkinson, Chester Lee Turner, James R. Kelly and Edward F. Howard, all accused of housebreaking; Charles A. Riddle, James H. Sebastian, Ruth N. Colton and James D. Shively, all accused of robbery; and Robert E. Smallwood, charged with two counts of housebreaking and one of trespassing.

The defendants will be arraigned before Judge Walter T. McCarthy in Arlington Circuit Court today at 10 a. m.

Retirement Approval

The White House announced yesterday that President Truman has approved the request for retirement of 70-year-old Robert C. Baltzell, Federal judge for the Southern District of Indiana, after a quarter of a century of service.

For FCC West Coast Color TV Test Set

By The Associated Press
Color Television, Inc., reported to the Federal Communications Commission yesterday that its color system is "as fool-proof as you can make it" but that the public should not expect any shift to rainbow video "tomorrow."

The corporation, headquartered at San Francisco, will officially demonstrate its color plan to the FCC on the West Coast next month.

In preparation for this, company witnesses began a detailed explanation of the operation today before the commission's current hearings on whether color television should be authorized now.

Commissioner Frieda B. Henock wanted to know, in the event an authority were issued to CTI, "How soon would your system be ready, that is, ready for the average housewife?"

Not Tomorrow
Samuel B. Smith, patent attorney and consultant to the company, replied that "we would like to have it tomorrow, but we can't have it tomorrow."

Pressed for a more specific answer, Smith testified: "It should be ready for the manufacturers in six or eight months."

He explained that a projected direct viewing tube for the system has not yet been completed, and that next month's demonstrations in the West will be on 15-by-20-inch projection screens.

In previous official tests here, Columbia Broadcasting System showed its color plan on direct view screens only, and Radio Corp. of America demonstrated both direct view and projection devices.

Smith described the RCA direct-view tube as "embryonic" and asserted the Columbia System should be ruled out because it involves a motor-driven color disc. He expressed the view that such a disc would limit further improvement.

No Obsolescence
"Our system," said Smith, "is fully compatible with present black and white operations and will not obsolete existing sets because these sets can, without any change, pick up CTI color broadcasts in black and white."

To receive in color, such sets would require a converting device, scheduled for detailed description later.

The witness added: "We consider we have a good workable system because we believe our apparatus is as fool-proof as you can make it."

Smith advanced the opinion that black and white broadcasts will continue side by side with color, and that sets should be capable of tuning in either, at the choice of the viewer.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

In the Other Fellow's Shoes
One of the most important human assets is the ability to understand how the other fellow feels. If, from the time a youngster is aware of other people, he is helped to understand why people act as they do, he'll grow up into the sort of person we can stand a good many more of in this world of ours.

The policeman on the corner is cranky. The six-year-old is likely to call him a dope. But if Mom or Dad suggests that the officer may be cross because he's tired or his feet hurt, Johnny's feelings are likely to be different. And if he can be helped to remember that he was cranky, too, not too long ago because he was tired out, he'll begin to "feel for" the cranky "cop."

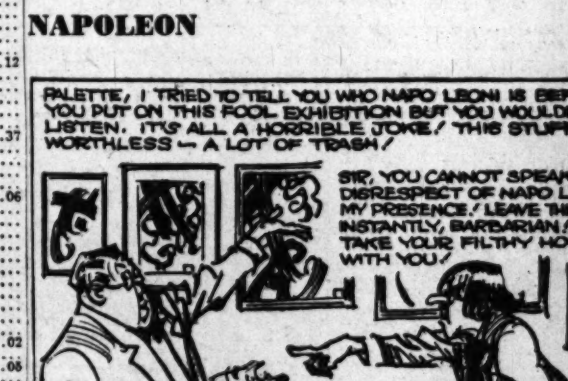

In similar ways, if youngsters are helped to try to figure out why people behave as they do rather than encouraged to blame or condemn, they'll tend to develop a friendly feeling that usually does so much to overcome hostility and grouches.

What's the Verdict

ARE BANK NOTES "MONEY"?
Q. When a suspect was caught after the theft of $500 in bank notes, he was indicted. The indictment accused him of having stolen money. His lawyer asked that the indictment be thrown out because it charged a theft of money, whereas the proof showed theft of bank notes. Is there any merit in the lawyer's contention?
A. The maneuver is not as unreasonable as it sounds. Some courts have held that legally "money" is printed coin of the realm, and that since bank notes essentially are simply promises to pay money on demand, they are not money. On facts similar to those in this case, indictments have been thrown out in Ohio, Texas, North Carolina and Kentucky, among other States. However, most courts would now hold that since

Our Health

We seldom think about our health . . . Or give it proper care . . . Until some illness comes along . . . To make our minds aware . . . And then we get to thinking . . . We worry and we fret . . . And buy up all the medicine . . . And pills that we can get . . . We lie in bed and we moan . . . Our horrid fate . . . And wonder whether life will last . . . Or if it is too late . . . When all along we could have been . . . Concerned a little more . . . And kept ourselves in shape to work . . . And win our every war . . . Our health is more important than . . . The many things we do . . . Indeed we have to have its help . . . To see each project through.

March of Progress Has Its Drawbacks

Mrs. R. G. Miller of 9-J Ridge rd., Greenbelt, Md., was getting worried about the absence of her 6-year-old daughter, Janet. It was late, and Janet should have been home long ago.

A frantic canvass of neighbors owning television sets failed to turn up any clues, and Mrs. Miller was all set to call the police, when Janet showed up.

She had been in an apartment across the court, enjoying a brand-new television set—the kind that requires no aerial.

OVERHEARD
“Her gossiping drives me nuts. It’s her favorite past-time.”

HERE WE GO AGAIN
I am still trying to find out how big a “big” television screen is. Latest clue is an ad which refers to a “full 23 sq. in. screen.” (That’s roughly 4 1/4 x 4 3/4 and isn’t nearly “big” or “huge”—but “full.”)

The Nats will soon have a new manager; all they need now is some big league talent for the manager to manage. . . . Thomas Collier of 6612 14th st. nw. suspects that the October 14 edition of one of our afternoon contemporaries was not quite up to the minute. It included a Hollywood item which said that “No Sad Songs for Me” would be directed by Sam Wood. Mr. Wood died on September 22. . . . Clara Casady was in an antique store the other day, and overheard a customer ask for “a cranberry etched inverted baby thumbprint spittoon.” She wanted to serve soup in it. . . . Mrs. Don E. Simmons of 3823 S. 1st rd., Arlington, Va., reports that the neighborhood kids are highly elated these days, because they’re learning to spell in school. One came home with the announcement: “We learned how to spell cat today. It’s c-o-t.” Another moppet disagreed. “Oh, no,” she said. “Cat is r-a-t.” . . . I told my non-spelling 13-year-old relative about this item, and his sly reply was: “I may not spell so good, but I’ve read so many of your Give-Aways that my pronunciation is improving. Every time you advertise a cat, the owner pronounces it ‘cute.’”

The Big Square Dance at Pierce Hall, 18th and Harvard sts. nw., Friday at 8:30 p. m., will be for the benefit of the Interracial Nursery School, 1701 11th st. nw. Attention, members of the Capital City Cocker Club: Your annual dinner has been delayed one day, and will be held this Thursday evening, instead of Wednesday, as originally planned. How Lewis Ditched Coal Talks

By Drew Pearson

John L. Lewis is now about as close to U. S. Steel as his ex-friend, now rival CIO Chief Phil Murray. This was behind John L.'s sudden walkout from the conference with Northern coal operators at White Sulphur Springs, Va. Here is the inside story of what happened. Lewis had put out a secret "feeler" to Northern owners that they settle the strike by increasing the 20-cent welfare fund payments to 30 cents a ton. Also, Lewis suggested a small, straight wage increase, plus a seven-hour day at the same wages the miners now receive for eight hours work.

All this was not a take-it-or-leave-it demand, but a suggested basis for negotiation. The miner boss made it clear he was chiefly interested in a boost in welfare fund overture.

However, U. S. Steel, which controls the coal strike talks almost as tightly as it controls the position of management in the steel strike, wasn't impressed. Harry Moses, president of U. S. Steel's H. C. Frick Coal Co., and George Love, of the Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., who works hand-in-glove with U. S. Steel, objected — which meant Lewis's "feeler" was a dead duck.

United States Steel's reason: It can't give Lewis more than it gives Phil Murray. In fact, U. S. Steel already has many industrial leaders sore because two years ago it gave Lewis a welfare fund with no contribution from the union. Despite this, it now is demanding that the steelworkers contribute something.

Therefore, if U. S. Steel's captive coal company now increases Lewis's welfare fund without payments from labor, Phil Murray would make a fresh set of demands for the steelworkers.

When Lewis learned his "feeler" had been rejected, he was fit to be tied. Insiders expected him to barge into the next meeting, spewing fire and verbal brimstone at the northern operators. Instead, he walked in without saying a word, sat scowling for five minutes then, as contemptuous as when he entered, walked out.

Figuring he had gone to the men's room, the northern operators waited and waited. Finally they learned he was on his way to Bluefield, W. Va., to confer with Southern operators.

Worried Over Tito
Defense Secretary Johnson brought United States foreign policy up to date the other day at a closed-door session of the Senate Appropriations Committee. Undersecretary of State James Webb faltered and fumbled under the Senators' withering cross-examination, but Johnson, with two exceptions, snapped back the answers without hesitation. These two involved Yugoslavia. He admitted Yugoslavia was the most explosive spot on the globe, and warned:

"Anything can happen there any day, any moment."

But he wouldn't say whether the United States is committed to rush arms to Tito, or what the U. S. plans to do in case of a clash.

About Greece, Johnson predicted the United States will be able to leave Greece standing on her own feet in eight to 12 months. Senator Burnet Maybank (D., S. C.) asked Webb: "Are our relations with Spain improving?" "Very definitely," replied Webb. "Our relations with Spain are actually improving," reiterated Webb.

About China, Webb said Secretary Acheson assigned three groups used if it is authorized?" asked Knowland. Webb hesitated, but Johnson spoke up bluntly. "As far as the Defense Department is concerned," he declared, "it wouldn't be asked for unless we intended to use it."

The curtains that swish into a perfect window-setting in 30 seconds flat!

It's sheer magic, that's all! Pull the sewn-in shirring tape . . . and swish! You have a perfect window-setting in 30 seconds flat! Cameo Shir-Backs cascade into myriads of tiny pleats. Billow around your windows in yards of shimmering loveliness! No fuss, no bother on your part! No endless hours of arranging and re-arranging! A dream of a curtain . . . that looks picture-pretty . . . that stays picture-pretty. Neither wind nor dusting will displace a single perfect pleat . . . disarrange a single perky ruffle. Any wonder that more Washingtonians want more Cameo Shir-backs. The Hecht Co. has them in your favorite ivory-toned fabric. See all . . . and see how you can glamorize your windows in 30 seconds!
